BOSTON GIRL VICTIM OF A MANIAC SLAYER; SUSPECT UNDER ARREST

New York Police Take Man Into Custody in Connection with Strangely Atrocious Crime—Identity of Girl Known as Nellie Quinn Is a Mystery.

BY BOSTON AMERICAN LEASED WIRE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Nellie Quinn, a Boston girl, was beaten to death at the lodging house of Mrs. Elizabeth Schwartz, No. 431 East One Hundred and Eighteenth street, and to-day George Cramer, who raves like a madman and is kept under close guard by the police to prevent his committing suicide, is at police headquarters. He is being held to explain, if he can, the death of the good-looking young woman.

With the identification of the body of the girl and the arrest of Cramer, some of whose clothing stenciled "George V. Cramer." was found in the room, the police believe that within the next few hours they will clear up the mystery of the crime.

Tells Different Story.

Cramer is a plumber. When he was arrested he was weak as the result of drinking heavily. He was put through the "third degree." The detectives had him on the rack for hours. At times he raved.

Cramer admitted to the detectives that he went with Nellie Quinn to the room where her dead body was found. He said that he had been drinking, that he met the girl last Friday. He says that he left the place on Monday morning, but Mrs. Schwartz declares that he did not leave until Tuesday. She says that she found the girl's body shortly after the man left. Cramer said the girl was employed at Randall's island.

Mrs. Schwartz declares that the couple gave the name of "Mr. and Mrs. George Boyle" when they came to her house, and she says that the girl says that her home was in Boston.

IS STRANGE CRIME.

There will be an autopsy performed on the mutilated body of the girl to-day. She was stabbed, beaten and strangled. The crime will go down in the police record and in those of the Coroner's office as one of the strangest in the city's history.

The slain young woman, who was about twenty-five years of age, was found by Mrs. Elizabeth Schwartz, the landlady, on the bed, with a sheet covering her. Her clothes, covered with bloodstains, were lying by the side of the bed. Her features were beaten so as to be unrecognizable.

Mrs. Schwartz had noticed that the man, who had come to the house last Friday with the woman, and who had said that his name was Boyle and that the woman was his wife, was very much excited after loud talking had been heard in the room. The landlady immediately went up to the room, forced the door, and was horrified to find the woman dead and mutilated.

The victim of the tragedy weighed about 115 pounds, was 5 feet 4 inches tall, and had brown hair and blue eyes.

Dr. Ross, of the Harlem Hospital, who was called, declared the woman had been dead several hours. There was nothing in her effects by which she could be identified.

The last seen of the woman was at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, when she went down to the front door, met Boyle and then returned to their room with him.

Paced Room All Night.

The man, according to Mrs. Schwartz, paced the floor in his room all night and would not stop, although the landlady several times protested against it. He went out at 10 this morning, and before his departure made careful preparation. He tore up the bed sheets and used them to wipe his hands after washing them in the basin.

Commissioner Martin Sheds More Light on

DOHERTY'S CITY COAL

Penal Head Admits Buying Fuel Before He Secured Permission of Mayor.

That a lot of coal had been delivered by Daniel R. Doherty to the city of Boston before Penal Commissioner John B. Martin asked permission of Mayor John F. Fitzgerald to buy it, and that Mr. Doherty owed the city 350 tons when another contract for 1,200 tons was made with him, without advertising for bids, were the sensational things brought out during the probe of the city's coal contracts by the Finance Commission to-day.

These things were admitted by Mr. Martin who took the stand at the opening of the hearing to-day.

During his testimony Mr. Martin several times lost his temper and got slightly sarcastic in his answers to Attorney Michael J. Sughrue.

Martin Gives Reason.

Mr. Sughrue's question, which lead to the most interesting developments, was, "What representations did you make to the Mayor to cause him to approve the making of a contract for 1,200 tons without advertising for bids?" A.—I suppose because we were running low on coal.

Q.—Isn't it true, Mr. Martin, that there were 350 tonse due you on a previous contract when you ordered 1,200 tons more? A.—Yes. That's so.

Q.—Then why did you order the additional 1,200 tons? A.—I suppose because we could buy it right and to the advantage of the city.

Q.—Did you nderstand that the law gave you the right to buy it without advertising for bids except in an emergency? A.—I so understood the law.

Bought Without Permission.

Q.—Did you ever buy first and then ask for permission? A.—I might have done so. That's possible.

Q.—Well, didn't you do so? A.—Yes, on the lot we bought last March.

Q.—Where was that coal, Mr. Martin, when you asked permission to buy it?. A.—In a vessel, I think, or on the way here or alongside the wharf at Deer Island.

Q—Isn't it possible that that coal might have been in the bins? A.—Yes, that's possible.

Q.—Don't you know, Mr. Martin, that it was in the bins? A.—Yes, I guess it was.

Q.—What was first delivered on that contract? A.—Forty-six tons, I believe.

Q.—And you called for Georges Creek Big Vein Cumberland, best of its kind? A.—Yes.

"Might Have Been Poor."

Q.—What did you get? A.—I don't know. That lot might have been poor coal. I don't recall.

Q.—Did you ever get any rebate on it? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever take any steps to know where it came from? A.—No.

Q.—Don't you know, Mr. Martin that it was Quemahoning coal? A.—No, I don't know it.

Q.—Was it billed as Cumberland coal? A.—Yes.

Q.—Don't you know Mr. Martin that that coal came from Stewart's Wharf by lighter. A.—I believe it did.

Q.—What did you ever do to find out that the city got what it was entitled to? The question angered Mr. Martin and he replied in tones that could be heard out in the corridors: "I did everything possible for a man to do. We burned the coal under our boilers and it gave the result we expected of it. It made steam.

Angry at Question.

Wouldn't any coal make steam?" asked Mr. Sughrue.

"No, it wouldn't, and you know it wouldn't," answered Mr. Martin, angrily.

Q.—Don't you know, Mr. Martin, that that was Quemahoning coal? A.—Do you say that was what I got?

Q.—No. Don't you know it was Quemahoning? A.—I answered that question once.

Q.—Did you advertise for coal to be tested by the British Thermal heat unit system? A.—Yes.

Q.—Don't you know that the United States government and several cities have used this system for years?. A.—Yes, recently but not for years.

Used Ash Test.

Q. Did you ever test the coal by the thermal heat unit system? A. We talked it over, but it did not get beyond the consideration point. We finally adopted the ash test.

Q. Would you be surprised to know that Que Mahoning coal was really delivered to you in that lighter? A. No.

Made More Purchases Whle the Contractor Still Had Big Amount to Deliver.

Q.—Would you have approved the bill had you known that it was? A.—If there had been no complaint and it had done the work.

Q.—Under a contract for Georges Creek Big Vein Cumberland, best of its kind, would you have approved of the bill had Que Mahoning been delivered? A.—No, I wouldn't.

Q.—Would you have allowed the city to pay for coal when Quemahoning coal was delivered in the place of Georges Creek when the best of its kind was specified? A.—No, sir.

Perkins's Signature.

Q.—Was it because the signature of Perkins, the deputy master, was on the contract that you approved it? A.—I have no doubt of it.

Q.—You would not have aprpoved of the bill if you knew that the coal was of another kind than that represented in the contract? A.—No.

Q.—"Would you have approved the bill if you knew it was Clearfield coal?" was asked the witness in reference to 83 tons of Quemahoning coal delivered by Daniel Doherty at Deer Island June 18. A.—It is possible that Mr. Doherty would send us whatever kind he had at a reasonable figure if he did not have the kind specified.

Q.—Did you ever get a rebate on the difference of the coal delivered? A.—No, never got one.

HOST AT ST. LOUIS HAILS ROOSEVELT

"SPLENDID" CRIES PRESIDENT, AS HE VIEWS GALA SCENE UPON LANDING.

ST. LOUIS Oct. 2.—The old sternwheeler steam Mississippi, with the big blue flag of the President of the United States flying from her peak, slipped under the Eads bridge before 9 o'clock to-day, nearly an hour before her scheduled time for arrival.

The cloud of gaily decorated steamers, tugs, launches and pleasure craft of all descriptions that was awaiting the President's arrival, chorused a noisy welcome, with bells, sirens and just plain whistles, and the President came out on deck to acknowledge the welcome by waving his hat.

Captain Seth Bullock and Lieutenant McIlhenny were at the President's side when he made his appearance.

At 9:30 the committee representing the business organizations drove to the levee to receive the President, and, a few minutes later the Mississippi sailed up to the dock, the gangplank was thrown out and the President came over at double-quick pace, escorted by his secret service guards and secretaries.

"By George, this is just splendid," said he as he surveyed the crowd, the line of decorated boats and the bunting decked business rouses on the levee.

As the parade started it began to rain heavily, but standing up in his open carriage President Roosevelt gave the order to continue.

OPENS FIGHT TO ANNUL TELEGRAPH CHARTERS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Attorney General Jackson won a preliminary victory in his effort to annul the charters of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies when he secured a Supreme Court order to-day directing both companies to show cause why such action should not be instituted.

The order was issued by Justice Ford of the Supreme Court, and is made returnable before Justice Seabury in Part I. of special term on Friday.

It directs the two telegraph companies to show cause why the Attorney-General should not be granted leave to begin an action to vacate the charters of the two companies and annul their corporate existence on the ground that they have violated the statutes of the State prohibitive of monopoly and unlawful restraint of trade and competition.

APPROVE ARMORY PLANS.

At a special meeting of the Governor's Council to-day the plans for the new Malden armory were approved. Plans for the ne warmory at Salem will be considered next week.

DELEGATES THRONG FOR LEAGUE CONVENTION

PREPARE FOR MEMORABLE GATHERING OF NEW PARTY TO-MORROW IN FANEUIL HALL.

Delegates to the second State convention of the Independence League of Massachusetts are already beginning to gather in Boston, and at the headquarters at the Quincy House will be seen to-night one of the most enthusiastic and memorable political assemblages this city has ever known.

From all over the Commonwealth comes tidings which indicate that the people are breaking away from the machine-directed old parties and are going to testify at the polls in November to their aversion for the merger methods, legislator buying and all-round corruption tactics of the monopolists who have taken possession of the ancient political organizations.

The delegates feel that they are representatives of the feeling of revolt which is animating voters everywhere of former political ties.

Enthusiasm for Hisgen.

There is a great deal of enthusiasm shown for Thomas L. Hisgen, who some time since announced that he sought the Independence League nomination for Governor of Massachusetts, and it is believed that he will receive a vote at the polls which will astonish party leaders if he is named as the standard bearer of the new party at the State convention in Faneuil Hall to-morrow.

Reserved seats for Faneuil Hall gallery can be obtained by prompt application at the office of the League's secretary, Room 348, Old South Building. Three hundred seats have been reserved for ladies and their escorts.

The Boston A. F. of M. Band will render a concert programme in Faneuil Hall for an hour before the convention proceeds to business, and Leader Jacques Benavente, the celebrated saxophone soloist, has announced a taking list of selections.

Mr. Hisgen will meet his friends in parlors 43 and 48 in the Quincy House this evening, and many Bostonians who have never had the chance before to meet this sturdy Springfield citizen will throng to that hotel to shake his hand. Intense interest is manifested all over the State in the man who had the courage to fight the great Standard Oil Company in its own domain, and has been able to hold his own against the greatest business odds that can be imagined.

Committee Meets To-night.

The State Committee of the Independence League meets to-night for final convention arrangements in the way of committee and other appointments. Delegates from Springfield, Holyoke and Pittsfield are coming to Boston to-morrow in a body. Among them will be Richard A. Hennessey of Springfield, one of the most influential of labor leaders in the western part of the state. In the Independence League convention of last year, Mr. Hennessey made the speech which put Mr. Hisgen forward as a candidate for nomination for State Auditor. He received 149,553 votes from the people for that office and has grown in popularity every hour since.

The Independence League platform will demand more liberal legislation in regard to injunctions, a jury trial in contempt cases and a law to prevent discrimination in the transportation rates charged on traffic between towns and cities. The platform will vigorously declare against any merger which puts New England interests at the mercy of a transportation monoply

BISHOP ADMITS HE WON FROM ROOSEVELT

RICHMOND, Oct. 2.—The Bishop of London has admitted that he beat President Roosevelt in the tennis match at the White House Friday. "I suppose you will not tell who won that tennis match?" he was asked. "Certainly I will," he replied. "I did." Then he smiled.

"Peeping Tom" Who's Strictly Up to Date Horrifies Newlyweds

Imagine the horror of a newly wedded pair who, after a month of honeymooning, find that a jealous rival of the young husband has played "Peeping Tom" on their every word and action, This "Peeping Tom" is strictly up to date. The "Newlyweds" discovered that the spying rival had caused tiny phonographs and moving picture machines to record their every action. This is a report of an actual occurrence, and proves that truth is stranger than fiction. It beats farce-comedy, and you will find the whole remarkable tale in NEXT SUNDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN.

"Leaders Deserted Me and the Party Last Year," Says Moran

DISTRICT ATTORNEY IN LETTER ACCUSES WHITNEY OF KNIFING HIM.

In an open letter to Henry M. Whitney, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, District Attorney John B. Moran charges many of the Democratic leaders with knifing him when he was the party's standard-bearer last year. The District Attorney's letter concludes as follows:

"At a time when nominated by the Democratic party for Governor the party and I were deserted by Douglas, by Thayer, by Quincy, by Sullivan, by McNary, by yourself, and others who were previously antagonistic to my nomination. Lawson, by his action, demonstrated himself to be a better Democrat than any of them, and better than you."

The letter follows:

"Mr. Henry M. Whitney:

"Sir—As a daily reader of the Boston newspapers, I observed in the Boston papers of Tuesday, September 24, last, the following words puporting to be uttered by you in a speech the night before:

"'It is generally believed in political circles that Mr. Moran had every reason to count upon a contribution of about this same amount (meaning $10,000) from Mr. Lawson after his nomination last year, and it is well known that no such contribution was forthcoming.'

Forbade Contribution.

"It is true that Mr. Lawson volunteered to contribute that amount of money to my campaign, stating at the same time that it would not place me under any obligation to him, and that he would not, if I became Governor, or held any other office, make any requests or suggestions to me relative to my course while in that office.

"It is true, as he stated in that letter, that I declined to allow him to make the contribution, at the same time expressing to him my appreciation of his offer.

"Some six or seven days before election day, which took place in November, 1906, Mr. Lawson called on me at my room in the Quincy House, found me in bed, and seating himself upon the side of the bed, he said: 'Moran, I have heard that your campaign committee is short of money. I have $3,000 or $4,000 in cash in my pocket which I will be glad to give to your committee now if you will allow me to.' I thanked him for his willingness, but told him that I must adhere to the position I took in my published letter of October 14.

Statement Unfounded.

"These facts, the greater portion of them proved by letters published in the daily press, which you will find in the papers on file in the various newspaper offices of those dates, together with my statement of Mr. Lawson's desire to contribute $3,000 or $4,000 towards the last of the campaign, must satisfy you that the statement made by you in your speech of September 23, quoted in the beginning of this letter, is absolutely unfounded, and of a nature reflecting upon, not only Mr. Lawson, but upon myself. Since the making of that speech by you, I have had no communication directly or indirectly with Mr. Lawson, and I do not know whether he will approve or disapprove of the publication of this letter to you.

"Under these circumstances there remains but one course for you to pursue. An apology publicly made to Mr. Lawson and to me is what would be expected from a man of honor."

120 BISHOPS AT EPISCOPAL CONVENTION

Thousands Witness Procession at Opening of Richmond's Big Meeting.

By Elizabeth Elliott Poe.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 2.—Richmond, the capitol of the Confederacy, the capital of Colonial times, is en fete to-day because she has welcomed with all the warm hospitality of the South the triennial general convention of the Episcopal Church of America to her midst. Her citizens and leaders have left the walks of ordinary pursuits to entertain the city's guests, her beautiful homes are thrown wide open to the stranger within the gates and nothing else is thought of or talked of in Richmond to-day except the general convention.

The formal opening of the convention occurred at 10 o'clock this morning with a united service of the house of deputies and the house of bishops in Holy Trinity Church which was consecrated yesterday with such inspiring ceremonies.

Thousands Outside Church.

Fully five thousand persons were gathered in Monroe Park in front of the church when the procession of 120 bishops robed in full canonical, their varied colored doctor's hoods adding color to the ensemble, marched from the Parish Hall into the crowded church, where standing room was at a premium and offers being made for admission tickets from $5 to $10 each.

Mother Church Greetings.

The service was short and its principal feature was the sermon by the Lord Bishop of London, who presented the greetings and congratulations of the church in England to her daughter in America on her 300th birthday. The historical significance of the scene was potent for it was under a lord bishop of London that the church was inaugurated in Virginia and now after 300 years a lord bishop of London has come to visit his bygone part of a diocese.

Right Rev. Henry Yates Satterlee, Bishop of Washington, read a poriton of the prayers and occupied a seat within the sanctuary rail throughout the entire service. Rev. Dr. Howden of St. John's Church, Georgetown, and Rev. Dr. de Vries of St. Mark's Church were present at the service, but left almost immediately thereafter to return to Washington.

Promptly at 2:30 this afternoon, the first session of the general convention was held. The house of deputies is meeting in historic St. Paul's Church, attended by Robert E. Lee and Jefferson Davis, while the State capitol has been turned over by the Commonwealth of Virginia for the use of the bishops who met in executive session and whose deliberations are always more or less confidential.

EX-INSPECTOR CLARK'S TRIAL BEGINS TODAY

Former City Official Faces Charge of Accepting Gratuities.

John P. Clark, former Inspector of Buildings for Boston, charged with requesting and accepting a gratuity in the performance of his duties, was placed on trial to-day in the second session of the Superior Criminal Court, before Judge Raymond. The case is being heard before a jury. Clark is represented by Jesse Gove and John E. Crowley, while the prosecution is in charge of Assistant District Attorney McGettrick.

There are seven counts in the indictment against Clark, all referring to the same charge. Four of the counts charge him with requesting a gratuity of $500, and three with accepting a gratuity of $50. The counts bear in the same transaction but are technically different.

In the indictment Clark is charged with "unlawfully requesting a gratuity, to wit, of $500 from Abraham Zimmon and Israe Flink, with the agreement that on payment of the gratuity the said Clark would permit the said Zimmon and Flink to violate the building laws of the city of Boston." Clark is also charged with unlawfully accepting a gratuity of $50 from Zimmon on agreement to permit him to violate the building laws.

The greater portion of this morning's session was taken up in the discussion of certain points in the indictment.

The jurors are: Foreman, C. H. Buckley, No. 171 M stret; R. J. Gunther, No. 432 Beach street; J. W. Bunn, No. 7 Mount Vernon street; E. D. Paine, No. 260 Columbus avenue; W. E. Wyman, No. 34 Shirley street, Winthrop; B. W. Bowdler, No. 337 Chambers street; J. McCaull, No. 3 Camden street; Edward Doherty, Massachusetts Chambers; L. A. Meroth, No. 9 Middlesex street; John W. Olmstead, 6 Lombard street; John A. Bonner, No. 30 Eliot street; E. H. Kelley, No. 27 Lamartine street.

LABOR NEWS

TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL ALLIED PRINTING BOSTON, MASS. 96

That the agents of every insurance company in the city were organized with the exception of those employed by the Prudential and Metropolitan companies was reported at last night's meeting of Industrial Insurance Agents' Union No. 1. The agents of both these companies would be in the union, asserted one of the union officials, were it not that the companies were using repressive measures.

The industrial insurance agents of England have been organized for thirty years, and there is no reason why the 100,000 agents in the United States and Canada should not protect themselves in the same manner.

The first of a series of ten mass meetings for organizing purposes in Greater Boston will be held to-morrow afternoon at 4:30 in Chase Hall, Prospect street, Cambridge, to which all agents are invited. National Organizer Maurice Hennessey starts on an organizing tour of the country next week. Local unions have been formed in Wilkesbarre and Denver.

VOTE NO INCREASE.

The Garment Workers' Union No. 1 last night voted against increasing the salaries of the international officers. A referendum vote is being taken all over the country on the proposition.

Nathan Sidlofsky was chosen delegate to the State Branch, A. F. of L., convention, to open Monday, October 14, at Milford. Hyman Cohen was elected recording secretary, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Isaac Witkin, who has been forced to leave the trade through illness.

OBSERVE FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

Harness Workers' Union No. 105 observed its fifth anniversary last night with a smoke-talk and entertainment at No. 734 Washington street. All of the large shops in Boston were represented, including those of the Mark Cross Company and London Harness Company. Delegates were also present from Portland, Portsmouth and Providence.

Addresses were made by President Richard T. Garrity of the Bartenders' Union, President George Alves of Local No. 105, past Presidents P. H. Cronin and David Gaddis, and William McMackin and Andrew Redpath of the Horse Collar Workers.'

MEN LASHED TO PUMPS SAVE SHIP FROM GALE

Sails of Three-Masted Schooner Empress Swept Away—Nearly Founders.

IN PORT BADLY LEAKING

Battered by the storm of Saturday night and Sunday, the three-masted schooner Empress is at anchor on the East Boston flats, leaking badly and without sails, all of them having been blown away off Cape Ann Sunday.

Captain Buchanan says that many times Sunday he feared that his vessel would go to the bottom.

The Empress came from Bridgewater, N. S., and had a fine passage until she got off Cape Ann Saturday night. Then it began to blow heavily. All night she lay "hove to" in the vicinity of the light. Sunday morning the velocity of the wind increased and soon the mainsail and foresail were in ribbons.

Men Lashed to Pumps.

The strain to which the hull was exposed started the oakum in the seams and at noon the vessel was leaking so badly that the pumps had to be kept constantly going. Heavy seas broke over the vessel and the men had to lash themselves to the pumps.

Sunday night wind and sea moderated and under bits of canvas hauled from the lockers and hastily lashed to the spars the Empress started for Boston.

"We crawled along, with the men pumping constantly," said Captain Buchanan. "When we reached Boston last night we were the most tired and the happiest lot of men in the world."

Bulwarks Cut Away.

The fishing schooner Mattie B. Brundage came in to-day from the Georges minus her bulwarks. Sunday when the storm broke she was at anchor off the Georges and when the seas began rolling over her the decks became flooded.

"The water poured on in masses that every minute threatened to send us to Davy Jones's locker," Captain Forbes told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, "and when I ordered the bulwarks cut away to let it roll back into the sea the Brundage was almost buried."

With her flag at half-mast, the fishing schooner Selma came into port. Her captain believed that two of his men, Fred Becker and John Williams, who strayed from their vessel in a dory, had been lost, but was overjoyed when he was told that they had been picked up by a coasting vessel and were now at their homes in Gloucester.

MOVE TO HALT BORAH TRIAL

BOISE, Ida., Oct. 2.—Before to-day's session of the trial of United State's Senator Borah is over the court will decide whether sufficient testimony has been introduced by the government to warrant continuing the trial. At the conclusion of the government's side of the case yesterday Borah's attorneys moved that it be taken from the jury. Judge Whitson already had ruled that the State must show Borah's connection before further evidence of conspiracy could be introduced. Borah's attorneys contend that the State has failed in this.

The special Grand Jury investigating the charges that District Attorney M. M. Ruick used undue pressure to gain the indictment of Borah returned a report exonerating Ruick.

HARRIS NOT GUILTY OF UNIONIST'S DEATH

JURY FREES MAN TRIED FOR SHOOTING TEAMSTER CUNNINGHAM.

Louis Harris, charged with murder in the second degree by shooting Michael J. Cunningham during the teamsters' strike last April, was to-day reported not guilty by the jury which rendered a sealed verdict at 5:12 o'clock last evening. The verdict was opened and read before Judge Raymond in the Superior Court at 9 a. m.

The jury was out only two hours and twelve minutes, but the judge had left court, and according to his instructions the verdict was sealed until court convened to-day.

Shook Friend's Hand.

When young Harris was freed, he leaped from the prisoner's cage and eagerly shook the hand of a New York friend, who has been constantly in attendance at the trial. They at once left the courtroom and went to the Milk street office of Harris's attorney, J. J. Feeley.

The jurors filed into the box at 9 o'clock, but Judge Raymond did not arrive until ten minutes later. Harris was told to stand up, and the clerk asked Foreman Hildreth:

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?"

The answer was: "We have."

The sealed verdict was handed to the clerk, who tore it open and read the finding, "Not guilty."

A broad smile appeared on the prisoner's face, and a moment later he was a free man.

The shooting of Cunningham, who was a union teamster, employed by B. Glover, but not on strike, occurred before the Boston Plate Glass Company's works on A street, South Boston, at 5:20 p. m., April 24. Harris, who lives on Third avenue, New York, and is only twenty-one years old, was taking the place of a striker and was employed by Fifield, Richardson & Company.

Story of Shooting.

He and two guards named Wilson and Hageman had just left the stables after finishing work for the day. According to the testimony at the trial, Wilson was knocked down by a man with Cunningham. When he got up both he and Hageman ran, leaving Harris alone. Cunningham was shot to death by Harris in the encounter.

He declared that he fired in self-defence while the prosecution, conducted by Assistant District-Attorney McGettrick, held that the shooting was an unprovoked murder.

MUSICIAN IN KNOWLES SUIT IN WORCESTER?

WORCESTER, Oct. 2.—Leroy Kenfield of Boston, named in the divorce suit recently filed by George B. Knowles of this city against his wife, Mrs. Inez [illegible] Knowles, is said to be registered at the Waldo House, here, as "L. Sherman," of Boston.

Kenfield is a member of the Symphony Orchestra, but members of the orchestra deny he is here.

Director Franz Kneisel, however, admitted last night Kenfield is in the city, and will play during the engagement of the orchestra. Strict orders have been given by the management of the Waldo, it is said, to deny Kenfield's presence.

When Sherman was approached last night by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, and addressed as "Mr. Kenfield," he declared his name was Sherman.

AUSTRIAN EMPEROR DOWN WITH ILLNESS

ECZEMA 15 YEARS WITHOUT RELIEF
Friend Recommended Cuticura—Uses Five Cakes Cuticura Soap and Two Boxes of Cuticura Ointment and is Entirely Cured—Feels Like New Man.
GLADLY RECOMMENDS CUTICURA TO ALL
"I have had eczema for over fifteen years, and have tried all sorts of remedies to relieve me, but without avail. I stated my case to one of my friends and he recommended the Cuticura Remedies. I bought them with the thought that they would be unsuccessful, as with the others. But after using them for a few weeks I noticed to my surprise that the irritation and peeling of the skin gradually decreased, and finally, after using five cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment it disappeared entirely. I feel now like a new man, and I would gladly recommend these remedies to all who are afflicted with skin diseases. David Blum, Box A, Bedford Station, N. Y., Nov. 6, 1905."
Little Son Had Eczema
"My son when four years of age had eczema on his body and limbs and suffered badly. Cuticura Remedies were recommended to me and I gave the complete treatment a trial and at the end of the third month my son was cured. I cannot say too much in praise of Cuticura Remedies and am always ready to recommend them to others. Mrs. G. H. Conant, Box 811, Rockland, Mass., Dec. 14, 1905."
Helpless Infants cured of Torturing, Disfiguring Humors, Eczemas, Tetters, Rashes, Itchings and Irritations, owe more to Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment than to all other remedies combined. No others so pure, so sweet, so speedily effective. May be used from birth.

NEW WERNER BRITANNICAS GOING FAST

Last Opportunity to Get Valuable Reference Work on Easy Terms.

SETS ARE LIMITED NOW

Continued sale of the New Werner 20th Century edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica has so reduced the stock on the edition on hand that but a limited number of sets, at less than half price and on the easiest of monthly payments, are left with the publisher.

Just because this American edition has been so popular and has sold so successfully, always giving perfect satisfaction, it has driven the high-priced English edition from the market in this country. This fact caused an agreement to be made whereby the American edition is soon to be withdrawn and then nothing but the English edition, high-priced, can be procured.

Offer Is Limited.

Because of this the American Newspaper Association, which has been selling the American edition, cannot renew its contract with the publishers again. On this account it will be possible to buy the low-priced American edition for only a short time longer. Now is the time, if ever, to obtain a set of the Encyclopedia Britannica at half-price on easy monthly payments.

What use is there to dwell on the merits of this great work? For more than a century the Encyclopedia Britannica has been the one authoritative work of general reference. Now and again new and enlarged editions have been published and placed on the market to keep up with the times. The New Werner 20th Century Edition, which is now being sold by the American Newspaper Association, contains thirty-one volumes. It contains nearly 25,000 pages and covers every department of information.

But 10 Cents a Day.

Most astonishing is the fact that the monthly payments upon which this wonderful work can be secured amount to but 10 cents a day. Any one who needs an encyclopedia cannot do better than to send his name in at once to the firm which sells the great work.

VICTORY WAS COSTLY.

Distress After Eating

Do You Ever Feel as Though You Had Swallowed a Brick, Instead of a Meal?

That heavy, bloated, stuffed-up, lead-like feeling which you often experience after eating a meal is positive proof that something is wrong with your digestive organs. They are becoming weak and fagged out. There is a lack of gastric and other digestive juices. The food is no longer properly digested and it forms a heavy load on your stomach, so that nearly every meal causes you misery and distress.

If you are in this condition, it means that you have dyspepsia in some form and may have had it for some time, though you didn't realize it.

Now is the time to check it, for if you don't it will surely develop into worse forms of dyspepsia and other stomach troubles, which may have serious results.

But that is not all. The stomach is the hub of the body and an injury to it is an injury to all. A weak stomach causes the whole body to suffer. The action of the heart, liver and kidneys becomes sluggish. The brain becomes inactive. The nerves become unstrung. The blood loses its vitality.

The only safe, sure, scientific method of restoring your stomach to its healthy, normal state is to use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which will act as a substitute in digesting your food, thus giving your stomach a much needed rest.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have stood the tests for years. Thousands have used them and been cured. Physicians all over the United States recommend them. They are not a secret remedy. They contain fruit and vegetable essences, pure concentrated tincture of hydrastis, golden seal, lactose and pure aseptic pepsin. These combined ingredients will digest the coarsest kind of food and do the work just as well as any good, strong, healthy stomach will.

Don't take our word for it. Ask your physician, your druggist or any of your friends who may have used Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. But you don't even have to take their word for it. Find out for yourself. Send for a free sample package and try them. That's the surest way to learn the truth. Then, if you are satisfied, you can go to your nearest druggist and get a fifty-cent box. All druggists sell them.

Write us for a free sample to-day. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

HEART-BROKEN MOTHER MOURNS LOSS OF HER CHILD.

Divorce war of Boston couple ends in father secretly taking away one of the two sons, while the lad was on his way to school, in Spokane, Wash. This was his second attempt, last year's effort ending in his arrest on kidnaping charge.

JOSEPH JACKSON.

MRS. J. H. JACKSON.

JOHN JACKSON.

DIVORCED BY WIFE, SPIRITS AWAY HIS SON

Dr. Jackson of Boston Crosses the Continent to Get Possession of Child.

Dr. John Herbert Jackson, the fashionable dentist of Boston and Beverly, whose pretty wife, Mrs. Mary L. Jackson, has recently secured a divorce from him in the Washington courts, is racing eastward from Spokane, Wash., with one of his sons whom he secured in that city a few days aog while the lad was on his way to school. The children have been stopping at the home of their grandparents in Spokane ever since Mrs. Jackson left her husband.

This is the second attempt of Dr. Jackson to secure his children. Last December he went to Spokane where his wife had just filed a suit for divorce and was arrested charged with attempt to kidnap the children from the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Sexton.

Blames Mother-in-law.

"Too much mother-in-law," is the reason Dr. Jackson has assigned to the courts and his many friends for his marital troubles.

Dr. Jackson brought suit for divorce in the Massachusetts courts last year against his wife. It was met by a cross suit, and these suits fell through, when after this, the doctor entered a second suit for divorce.

"I know that my wife is not the proper person to take charge of my children," Dr. Jackson has told his friends.

"For nearly nine years we lived happily together, and our two boys, Jack, aged six, and Joe, aged three made our lives completely happy. Then came my mother-in-law, Mrs. J. B. Sexton, and after that trouble came apace. A man visited our home too often and I objected. I asked my wife to send her mother home and she refused. Two days before last Thanksgiving she left, taking the children with her."

Dr. Jackson followed his wife to Spokane, where he was thrown from the house of her parents and arrested, charged with disorderly conduct.

Went on Mission of Peace.

"My son went to Spokane on a mission of peace. He intended no trouble," said Dr. Jackson's mother. "His mother-in-law is to blame for all of his troubles."

Mrs. Jackson in her suit charged Dr. Jackson with cruelty and threatening to kill her, as well as with the use of morphia and other narcotics.

Dr. Jackson and Miss Mary L. Sexton came from Spokane, Wash., a few years ago to study in Boston. After the dentist graduated from the Boston Dental School they were married and lived here. They had two children and for a time lived happily. Then came differences between husband and wife which finally ended in Mrs. Jackson's departure for the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. F. Sexton, of Spokane. Dr. Jackson recently began an attempt to recover the child. Recently he started for Spokane, timing his arrival for early morning and got hold of the boy on his way to school. Then he hurried across the Canadian border and started back to Boston.

Mrs. Jackson, although broken-hearted over the loss of her child, admits that at present there is no legal way by which she can get him back. She was ignorant of the arrival of her former husband at Spokane and for some time after her son disappeared did not learn where he had gone.

She had the authorities of Spokane searching for him. It is expected she will make a fight to recover the boy.

TWO NEWTON BOYS DROWNED

Clayton A. Davis, aged ten years, and Joseph Lane, aged eight, both of Newton Highlands, fell into Crystal Lake, Newton Centre, and were drowned. They were fishing from a boulder on the shore, lost their balance and fell into water about six feet deep. Clyde Davis, eight years old, brother of Clayton Davis, was the only person in the vicinity. He threw a fishing rod to his companions and one of them grasped it, but lost his hold and sank. Young Davis ran up the railroad tracks, a distance of a mile, and told his father of the accident. Neighbors hurried to the lake but it was too late to assist the boys. The bodies were recovered an hour later. The Lane family were to start to-day for St. John, N. B. Tickets had been bought and their furniture stored.

HOLD 7 PUBLIC OFFICIALS ON INDICTMENTS

Yesterday, in Superior Court, before Judge Crosby, Senator Edward J. Bromberg, Aldermen James M. Curley and John E. Baldwin, former Representative Frank J. Gethro, former Representative Daniel J. McDonald, all of Boston, and Senator Frederick J. Macleod of Cambridge were arraigned on the indictments returned against them by the Grand Jury charging that, while holding public office, they sought employment for constituents from the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company. Each was held in $300 bail. The penalty fixed under the statutes for a conviction is a fine of $50 to $100.

In only two of the indictments are the names of the men for whom employment was sought given. In all the other indictments the defendants are said to have violated the law in asking employment for persons whose names "to the grand jurors are unknown."

John C. Norton, foreman of the Back Bay paving yard of the street department, was also haled before the bar yesterday and asked to plead to an indictment charging larceny from the city in five counts, the amount named in each count being $10. This case is an outcome of the senatorial fight in the South and West Ends a year ago, when the government charges the names of men who favored one of the candidates were put on the payrolls, and that they did not earn the money that was paid them. The government claims that Mr. Norton as foreman of the yard was supposed to see that they were on duty.

It is understood that District Attorney Moran will ask for trial of all of these cases during the October term of court, though no formal demand for an early trial has been made by counsel.

Judge Crosby has dismissed the Grand Jurors to come in for the regular October session Monday.

BOLD SOMERSET THEFT MYSTIFIES THE POLICE

BELIEVE BURGLAR WAS SURPRISED AT HIS TASK BY THE ROOM OCCUPANTS.

How a robber scaled the rear fire escape of the Hotel Somerset and entered the room of Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Cannon on the fourth floor of that fashionable Back Bay hostelry and stole $500 worth of jewelry and a fine business suit, hangers and all, and then clambered down the dizzy iron lattice work to safety is a mystery which the police of Station 16 and the management of the hotel are trying to solve to-day.

That Mr. Cannon surprised the thief before he had half concluded his work in the room was evident from the fact that many valuables, including jewelry of great value, were still found scattered in confusion on the dresser in the room.

"I believe that had we noticed our losses when we entered our room I might even then have seen the robber clambering hastily down the fire escape, but we didn't," said Mr. Cannon to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

"Mrs. Cannon and I went down to dinner, and it must have been about 10:30 when we rturned to the room. I had an important letter to write and, not until my wife asked me if I had mislaid several articles of jewelry, did I notice, when it was too late, that the window leading to the fire escape was opened."

Assistant Manager R. L. Brown, of the Hotel Somerset, said that the robbery seemed to be a complete mystery, and that he had notified the police at once when it had been reported to him.

None of the employes of the hotel saw any suspicious person lurking around the place last evening.

SIGN 7 DAYS WORK PAPERS

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Oct. 2.—Yesterday the law forbidding electric and steam railway companies to compel their employes to work seven days a week unless the employes express a desire to do so went into effect. One hundred and fifty employes of the Interstate Consolidated Railway Company signed the blanks furnished by the State signifying their wish to work seven days a week. It is believed that by to-night all of the employes of the company will have signed the papers.

"For fifteen years I have been working for this company, working seven days a week," said one of the conductors to the BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "I signed the blank not because I do not want a day of rest, but because, unless I work seven days a week, I cannot support my family.'

They decided to resume the investigation to-morrow at 11 o'clock in the morning.

NO POWER CAN DICTATE FLEET MOVEMENTS

—SCHLEY

Admiral Declares It Would Be an Impertinence Justifiable of Resentment.

NO WAR WITH JAPANESE

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—"It would be an impertinence justifiable of quick resentment, for any power, in time of peace to dictate to this country where and when its fleet should manoeuvre."

This was the succinct comment of Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, yesterday, when asked about possible antagonism from Japan, as the result of the cruise of the squadron of American warships to the Pacific.

Admiral Schley, who fought on the famous battle of Santiago, was found at the Hotel San Remo, Seventy-fourth street and Central Park, west, yesterday morning by a reporter of the AMERICAN.

Sturdily erect, his black hair short and gray, but with eye undimmed by age and showing no diminution of vigor, the Admiral in a few words expressed his opinions.

When asked about the interview with Admiral Coghlan, printed exclusively in the AMERICAN yesterday, which declared Japan preparing for a war and that drastic preparatory measures were imperative, the Admiral said:

No Ground for War.

"I can hardly think that a war is imminent, or is possible. There is no ground for a war. I don't believe that the Japanese are seeking a war, and I know that this country will not be plunged into one needlessly."

"Then," it was asked, "why should the Japanese press object to the cruise of the American fleet to the Pacific?"

"I know of no real demonstration of disapproval," the Admiral replied. "I think it would be the height of impertinence, in time of peace, for any power, Japan or otherwise, to express even an interest in what waters or at what time we manoeuvre our fleet.

"There is no use discussing the cruise of the fleet to the Pacific. That has been settled upon by the authorities in charge of the matter, and if there is criticism of the projected movement of the battleships it should be confined to the United States; it could not be tolerated anywhere else.

Says Mr. Hearst Is Right.

"Mr. Hearst, in a signed statement in the AMERICAN, sounded just exactly the to be a war. I can see no sense in one or reason for one. But if we want to send our ships to the Pacific we can do it, and any one that picks on that as a ground for opinion that every right-thinking American entertains. I don't believe there is going a war is going far afield for an excuse. I believe the ships will be benefited by the trip and the entire efficiency of the navy increased.

"As to the need for more battleships or cruisers, a bigger fleet and a greater navy, my views are pretty well known. I think every navy man wants the biggest and finest navy in the world for his own country, and I would like to see our navy outstrip that of the world, but to built it because we are menaced by war seems to me uncalled for. To build it as a lasting glory for the country and the greatest methods of insuring peace seems to me to be the best thing."

STOP THE STRENUOUS LIFE

Weakens the Tissues and Lessens Organic Vitality.

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country tends towards stomach troubles.

The frantic rush for pleasure, money and excitement is bringing serious results. Elaborate food, late suppers, over-eating and too much drinking are some of the causes of stomach weakness for which the individual is responsible.

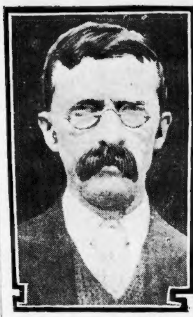
Five people suffer to-day where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach troubles, and that means at least two out of three in Boston and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else is as safe, yet effective; nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na. It is unlike any remedy heretofore known, and is actually one of the most valuable discoveries in modern medical science.

It is not a mere digestive taken after the food is eaten, but a true tonic, stimulant and strengthener for the muscular walls of the stomach, increasing the flow of digestive fluids and putting the stomach into such condition that it does the work Nature expects of it. It is an absolute and lasting cure, for it banishes all weakness and debility from the stomach and bowels.

Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere for 50 cents, and we positively guarantee to refund your money should you purchase a box and be dissatisfied with results. Write for free sample, addressing Booth's Mi-o-na, Box 977, Buffalo, N. Y.

League Candidates Wage War on Trust Nominees



Thomas Hooper, of Brighton.

Charles G. Kidder, of Taunton.

Organized Labor Greatly Interested in Contests in Second and Fourth Districts.

Organized labor and friends are watching with special interest the contests in the Second and Fourth Councillor Districts.

Delegates to the Independence League councillor conventions propose to nominate two able and well known labor leaders to oppose Albion F. Bemis, Republican, Brookline, in the Second District, and either Alfred E. Cox of Malden or Walter J. Glidden of Somerville, whichever one secures the Republican nomination in the Fourth District.

Cox is one of the Employers' Committee to raise $1,500,000 with which to fight labor unions and Glidden is with the Beef Trust.

Charles G. Kidder of Taunton is favored for the nomination on the Independence League ticket by every delegate to the convention.

Mr. Kidder is president of the Taunton Typographical Union and a former president of the Central Labor Union of that city. He has done considerable work both in a literary and practical way for the cause of union labor, and is regarded as one of the soundest and strongest advocates of union principles in the State.

Labor's Vote for Friend or Foe?

The Second District is composed of Wards 20, 21, 23, 24 of Boston, Quincy and Taunton and a score of towns in Bristol and Norfolk counties.

For the League nomination as councillor in the Fourth District Thomas Hooper of Brighton is favored by every delegate. Mr. Hooper has been business agent of the bookbinders of this city and served two terms as financial secretary.

He took a leading part in the promotion of the Wage Earners' movement, and his efforts in behalf of more progressive labor legislation have been persistent and unstinted for many years. Mr. Hooper says:

"I stand for the just demands of organized labor. I am a working man. Whoever is my oponent on the Republican ticket, whether Cox or Gilden, is bitterly oposed to the just demands of labor.

"Here is an opportunity for the working people of the Fourth District. They are offered the chance of forgetting party and voting for their friends or their enemies. Let's see if they will do it.

"I shall make the appeal strongly, and if the working people of the Fourth District are true to their best interests I should be elected."

Fight on Trust Candidates.

The Fourth District comprises Wards 10, 11 and 24 of Boston, from Wards 5 to 11 inclusive of Cambridge, Chelsea, Everett, Malden, Melrose, Revere and Winthrop.

The Democrats have failed to nominate in these districts, and the only real protest against the Republican trust candidates is to be made by the Independence League.

SPIRITS FOIL POLICE IN MAY PEPPER HUNT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Mrs. May Pepper-Vanderbilt, the Spiritualist medium and mundane mouthpiece of Little Bright Eyes, the defunct pappoose, is facing arrest on a warrant said to have been sworn out by Miss Minerva Vanderbilt, her stepdaughter.

Detectives were watching her home at No. 587 St. Mark's avenue, Brooklyn, awaiting to take her in custody, but she didn't appear. They took every precaution to prevent her going out or coming in unseen. They could not, of course, interfere with any aid and comfort Bright Eyes might offer her in the way of transmitting information anent the sleuths' movements.

Then there was faithful old Red Light, another ghost who has seldom failed to get there when Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt needed assistance. Whether he and Bright Eyes were watching them the detectives had no way of finding out. At any rate, they couldn't discover the whereabouts of the medium.

It is said that since Miss Minerva was successful in having her father, Edward Ward Vanderbilt, Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt's husband, declared incompetent by a sheriff's jury, she has been seeking evidence that would warrant the issuance of a warrant for her unwelcome stepmother.

Unless baffled by Bright Eyes and Red Light, the detectives hoped to find the bishopess of spookdom to-day.

TAX COLLECTOR AFTER DELINQUENTS

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 2.—Delinquent taxpayers of this city were handed a surprise to-day when, under instructions from the city government, Tax Collector Walter H. Page placed writs in the hands of High Sheriff Hollis for suits against thirty property owners for back taxes amounting to over $5,000.

GUNS WELCOME GOVERNORS AT BROCKTON

Great Fair Gives Enthusiastic Greeting to Guild and Floyd To-day.

AIRSHIP FLIGHT PLANNED

BROCKTON, Oct. 2.—Brockton Fair received the Governors with salvor of artillery. It is Governor's Day. Governor Curtis Guild of Massachusetts and Governor Charles M. Floyd of New Hampshire and their staffs arived at 11:30 on a special car from Boston.

They were met at the station by the fair committee. These escorted the Governor's party to the Commercial Club House, where an informal banquet was given in honor of the guests.

Visit Fair Grounds.

At 1 o'clock the Governors visit the fair grounds, escorted by a battalion of the Tenth Coast Artillery. At the Forest avenue gate the visitors are received by massed bands composed of seventy-five pieces. As the guests enter the grounds thirty-six guns roar their welcome to the two Governors.

Roy Knabenshue, the famous aeronaut, in his new airship, sixty feet long and sixteen feet in diameter, will make a trip over the fair grounds. Oscar V. Babcock performs his thrilling act, "Death-defying the gap." Astride of an ordinary bicycle, Babcock starts at the top of a fifty-foot incline, enters the loop at top speed and whirls into space on his machine, spinning thirty feet before he lands on an elevated platform.

Fifteen thousand children visited the Fair yesterday. A conservative estimate places the total attendance at 25,000. Twice that number and more are expected to-day.

Governors Take in Races.

After the Governors' party has entered the Fair grounds, they will make a tour of the race track and stop in front of the judges' stand opposite the private boxes. After witnessing the trotting races and vaudeville features the party will split into squads and get all the enjoyment possible out of the day's outing, which will be altogether informal.

The Salem Cadet band, Martland's Brockton band and Burke's band will be stationed all day at the Fair grounds.

STOKER JUMPS INTO SEA.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Kronprinz Wilhelm, just in from Bremen, was delayed in midocean while a lifeboat circled more than an hour about the liner loking for Hans Briegfezen, a stoker, who went crazy and jumped overboard. There was a heavy sea running, and the man was never seen after his leap.

HIGGINS IS VICTOR IN DEADLOCK OF 19 HOURS

MIDDLESEX DISTRICT ATTORNEYSHIP DECIDED IN PROLONGED FIGHT IN CONVENTION.

HOW VOTE SHIFTED SLOWLY TILL HIGGINS WON VICTORY

	HIGGINS....	SCOTT....	JOHNSON..	HILL......	BROWN...
1st ballot......	111	92	82	66	38
10th ballot....	115	79	83	79	33
18th ballot....	141	50	128	57	3
24th ballot....	186	56	91	3	0

Amid enthusiastic cries of "Higgins and home" John J. Higgins of Somerville, at 6 o'clock this morning, was nominated for District Attorney by the Middlesex county Republican convention, after a continuous session of nineteen hours, during which twenty-four ballots were cast.

As ballot after ballot was counted, with the nomination of a candidate as far off as when the convention first opened, a large number of the delegates left the hall, and when the final ballot was taken sixty-three of the delegates were missing.

On he twenty-fourth ballot Higgins was declared the winner, with 186 votes to his credit. His nearest opponent was Melvin Johnson of Waltham, who received 91 votes. Arnold Scott, present assistant district attorney, got 56, J. G. Hill of Lowell 3, and N. P. Brown, who started with 38 votes, finished with none.

Nomination Unanimous.

After Higgins was announced the winner, a number of the delegates moved that the nomination be made unanimous, which was done, with cheers for Mr. Higgins and each of the other candidates.

Hungry and weary from their long fight, the supporters of Arnold Scott of Newton and Gilbert Hill of Lowell stampeded to Higgins on the twenty-fourth ballot, and the latter secured 186 votes out of a total of 336 cast, his nearest opponent, Melvin M. Johnson of Waltham, receiving ninety-one, the others being scattered between Hill, Scott and Nelson P. Brown of Everett.

Starting in at 11 o'clock yesterday forenoon the balloting was kept up at frequent intervals through the day and night, without apparent change until the final ballot was reached, the state of the vote varying but slightly throughout the entire period.

Early this morning some of the delegates were talking of fighting it out all Summer, and one of the members of the convention stepped into the Cambridge police station to send word to his wife not to expect him home to dinner to-day and not to worry if he did not come home until next Saturday or Sunday.

But, with the approach of the breakfast hour, becoming confident that their candidates could not secure the nomination under the circumstances, the supporters of Scott and Hill broke the solid front they had preserved for many weary hours and swung into the Higgins column, making possible the nomination of the latter.

Cheers in Convention Hall.

As the result of the final ballot was made known there was enthusiastic cheering in the convention hall, and, after the transaction of some minor routine business, the convention was adjourned at 6:25 o'clock, the delegates being glad to escape to their homes for breakfast, and to get in readiness for their day's work.

The fight for the nomination from its inception was a five-cornered one between John J. Higgins of Somerville, Arnold Scott of Newton, Melvin M. Johnson of Waltham, Gilbert Hill of Lowell and Nelson P. Brown of Everett. Three hundred and ninety-two delegates were entitled to sit in the convention, and but few votes less than this number were cast during the entire balloting until the final voting.

Ex-Mayor Edgar R. Champlin of Cambridge, made the speech placing in nomination Mr. Higgins. From the first ballot on which Mr. Higgins received 111 votes, Higgins was constantly in the lead, receiving as high as 145 on the sixteenth ballot and his vote in the interim varied between those two figures.

His nearest opponent was Melvin M. Johnson, who got 129 votes on several ballots, while Scott, Hill and Brown trailed along in the order named.

MORGAN'S PORTRAIT TO BE AUCTIONED OFF

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The portrait of J. P. Morgan on which the original refused to pay duty, is to be auctioned off to the highest bidder at the appraiser's stores late this afternoon. The picture was painted by a Swedish artist from a photograph of the New York financier. Its appraised foreign value the date of exportation was $25, but Mr. Morgan says it's worth only $5, and would not pay.

WHITNEY MEN FEAR PLOT IN LEASE OF HALL

Warning That Bartlett Supporters May Dominate Springfield Convention.

ENGAGED IN HIS NAME

Whitney men, fearing a plot to make trouble for them at the Springfield convention, are said to be alarmed by the report that State Committeeman Patrick O. Mitchell of Springfield has personally leased the Court Square Theatre in that city, and not the Democratic State Committee as a body. The information has been sent to Boston by a leading Springfield Democrat, who has warned Whitney supporters to be prepared for any emergency.

Can Dominate Convention.

As the lessee of the hall, Mr. Mitchell can dominate the proceedings. He can order the janitor to eject anyone he chooses; he can clear the hall and drive all the delegates out if he wishes, whether the business of the convention is finished or not.

Mitchell is a staunch Bartlett man, and the intimation that he may use his power in the interest of his candidate is what alarms the Whitney men.

"Will Do Nothing Unfair."

But Mitchell and his friends scout the idea of doing anything unfair in the convention and say that everybody will be treated with the utmost courtesy, and that each side will be given the greatest latitude in debate.

The refusal of Chairman John P. Feeney of the Democratic State Committee to allow himself to be used by either faction in the present contest has injected more ginger into the ranks of both sides, and the managers of Whitney and Bartlett put on more steam yesterday in preparing for the final round-up at Springfield Saturday.

LAW SCHOOL OPENS.

The formal opening of the Boston University Law School takes place to-day, and Dean Melville S. Bigelow and other prominent members of the faculty will address the students in the large lecture hall.

NEW B. & A. MANAGERS PLANNING BIG REFORMS

"Better to Do Things Than Talk," Says Assistant General Manager Hustis.

> WHAT BOSTON IS PROMISED UNDER NEW B. & A. REGIME
>
> "Nearly $3,000,000 in equipment and improvements.
>
> "The best possible service that lies within our power.
>
> "We have a good man in the right place and we propose to contribute our share to the upbuilding of Boston's business as best we know how to do it."—By Senior Vice-President W. C. Brown of the N. Y. C.
>
> "Wait and see. It is a good deal better to do things than to talk about them and not accomplish anything in the end."—By J. H. Hustis, new Assistant General Manager of B. & A.

The first day of the new management for the Boston & Albany branch of the New York Central did not work many wonders, although the officials started an investigation as to the causes of traffic delay, and a very much improved service is promised in the near future. The trains from the West made fairly good time, although five of the big specials were still running on the tardy schedule.

The board at the South Station for train arrivals gave the Albany train, due at 5:15, on time; New York train, due at 6:45, on time; Albany Mail and Express, due at 10:15, on time; Pittsfield Special, due at 11:40, on time; New York Express, due at 3:15, on time; Berkshire Express, due at 4:30, on time, and the New York Express, due at 5:30, on time, while the train from Albany, due at 6:50, was ten minutes late; Atlantic Express, due at 8:47, four minutes late; Southwestern Limited, due at 10:40, one hour and ten minutes late; Chicago Special, due at 3, one hour and ten minutes late, and the New England Special, due at 5, one hour and fifty minutes late.

Promises Remedy.

But relief is in sight and the brand new management which has taken up the reins promises a speedy remedy, and besides having the trains on time, Boston is also promised more freight business, in fact the Hub will again be a real terminal.

The new officers, J. H. Hustis and A. H. Smith, together with several other road officials, went over the route with Albany as their destination to thoroughly inspect the various grades and sidings and to study the roadbed.

The party only got as far as Springfield, where they dropped off over night, and again took up their tour of inspection this morning. It is beyond this point, the officials claim, that the greatest delays have been encountered.

Mr. Hustis was apparently satisfied that the public of this city had had their patience tried out long enough, and said that the entire and combined railroad skill of the New York Central will be concentrated on the one subject of improving the Boston service.

Under the new system passenger officials or freight traffic officials bringing trains for Boston bound from the West will be held accountable by the general management for delivery in this city.

In the matter of freight it was pointed out that the best that could be done at present was 250 cars a day. This will be increased to 1,000 cars before the Winter starts in. The Winter schedule goes into effect the 27th of this month, and in addition to the freight changes, through trains for passengers to both Buffalo and Chicago will be in order.

New Locomotives Promised.

One of the principal causes for delays, it was pointed out, was that freights would become stalled or forced to go very slow on heavy grades. All this will be done away with, however, and already a new third track is under way for the freights.

Another cause of delay was the shortage of engines, but this is being remedied, new locomotives having arrived here, while others will be taken from the main lines of the Central and sent here, and ten are expected this week.

In speaking of yesterday's delays one of the officials said that while he admitted the service to be poor at present, the people of Boston would soon have the best service in the land. He declared that while it could not be remedied in a day or a week, all improvements that are now enjoyed by patrons of the New York Central would soon be at the disposal of Bostonians.

Millions to Be Spent on Road.

Mr. Hustis was questioned as to his plans for the future. He simply replied: "Wait and see. It is a good deal better to do things than to talk about them and not accomplish anything in the end. It is my duty to work out every problem that comes to me, so that the people of Boston may find satisfaction in the management of the Boston & Albany railroad."

Anothr ray of sunlight may be seen in the following figures which, according to Vice-President Brown, will be expended to improve the service, $1,250,000 for miscellaneous improvements, $1,389,600 for new locomotives and $364,000 for new passenger equipment.

During the day the officials were kept pretty busy. In the forenoon they visited the East Boston terminal, where they inspected everything in general. Later they were the guests at a luncheon given by General Passenger Agent Hanson, after which they started in their private train over the road.

It came out yesterday that now, for the first time since the New York Central secured the lease of the Boston & Albany, the Massachusetts road is being operated, beginning yesterday morning, as an integral part of the New York Central system.

INJUNCTION OFF; STRIKERS MAY GET HELP

According to an order by Judge De Courcey of the Superior Court, the striking telegraphers who are members of the Telegraphers' Mutual Aid Association may now receive a benefit from the association. By agreement of both sides the court dissolved the injunction which restrained President Clarke and other officers from helping the strikers, it being claimed by certain members that such action was not in accordance with the rules of the association.

At the meeting of Boston branch, Commercial Telegraphers' Union, it was stated that not one desertion from the ranks of the strikers has taken place. Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell said he had written to President Roosevelt regarding the strike. He urged the President to interfere.

Every branch of the United Irish League in New England will be represented at the meeting to be held this evening in the American House. Definite action is to be taken on the coming demonstration the latter part of this month when National President Michael Ryan of Philadelphia will be the guest of the Boston branches and speak under their auspices. Dr. Thomas J. Dillon, the president of Boston Council, will preside.

The delegates who recently returned from the convention in Ireland will be present at the meeting and will discuss the view the work of the League in Ireland needs of the organization. They will re- and point out the most successful way in which to combat the machinations of the enemies of the Irish cause.

Secretary O'Callaghan, will submit several reports having to do with the affairs of the central body, and the committee appointed at the last meeting to devise ways and means of strengthening and enlarging the scope of the coming entertainment and lecture will submit its findings.

In Her Second Parable, Dorothy Dix Tells of Another of the FIVE FOOLISH VIRGINS

BY DOROTHY DIX

THIS is the parable of the second foolish virgin:

There was a certain Beauteous Maiden, who, having Partially Assimilated large chunks of Indigestible Knowledge at a Female College, sat down and thus communed with her soul:

"I desire," said she to herself, "not only Eventually to capture a Good Husband, with a Domestic Disposition and an Automobile, but to have a Merry Swing around my Exclusive Circle while I am a Girl.

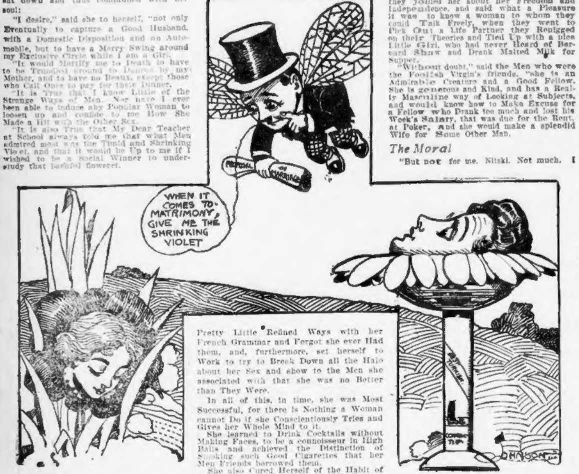
"It would Mortify me to Death to have to be Trundled around to Dances by my Mother, and to have no Beaux, except those who Call Once to pay for their Dinner.

"It is True that I know Little of the Strange Ways of Men. Nor have I ever been able to induce any Popular Woman to loosen up and confide to me How She Made a Hit with the Other Sex.

"It is also True that My Dear Teacher at School always told me that what Men admired most was the Timid and Shrinking Violet, and that it would be Up to me if I wished to be a Social Winner to understudy that bashful floweret.

THE LESSON THE SECOND FOOLISH VIRGIN LEARNED

The eligible young man, seeking for a wife, found both the dashing sunflower and the modest violet.



PROPOSAL OF MARRIAGE
WHEN IT COMES TO MATRIMONY, GIVE ME THE SHRINKING VIOLET

The seeker for a wife passed the sunflower by for the modest violet girl, who didn't know a cocktail from a glass of grape juice.

The second virgin thought the sunflower type was the thing to catch a man, but she found that she was only a good fellow.

"My Brief Observation, however, of how Things are Run in Real Life leads me to Believe that my Teacher's Life was a Phony One. Moreover, so far as my Limited Vision goes, it appears to me that the Masculine National Flower is the Sunflower and not the Violet.

"I may not have X-ray Eyes, but I am not so Blind that I cannot see that the Women who have Men Standing Around them Four Deep are the Girls who have a Preference between Scotch and Rye, and who can Smoke Cigarettes without getting Green in the Face.

"Wherefore, it is me to be a Good Fellow, and Real Chummy with Men, for I apprehend that for a Maiden to be a Real Lady in these days is a Sign that she is going to Get Left."

Her Philosophy

So the Foolish Virgin Packed away her Pretty Little Refined Ways with her French Grammar and Forgot she ever Had them, and, furthermore, set herself to Work to try to Break Down all the Halo about her Sex and show to the Men she associated with that she was no Better than They Were.

In all of this, in time, she was Most Successful, for there is Nothing a Woman cannot Do if she Conscientiously Tries and Gives her Whole Mind to it.

She learned to Drink Cocktails without Making Faces, to be a connoisseur in High Balls and achieved the Distinction of Smoking such Good Cigarettes that her Men Friends borrowed them.

She also Cured Herself of the Habit of Blushing when People told Off Colored Stories in her Presence, and although it Always gave her a Sort of Gone Feeling at the Pit of her Stomach she got so she could Discuss Books and Plays with Pathological Systems in Public.

Likewise, although she was Fatally Handicapped by her sex, which Never learns to Swear any Better than it Throws Rocks, she acquired a Modified Dexterity in the Use of Profanity.

For awhile it appeared to the Foolish Virgin that she had Rung the Bell with her System of Winning the Admiration of Men, and she would Lie awake of Nights shaking Hands with herself over her Acumen in Perceiving how the Trick was Turned.

How It Worked

She was never at a loss for some one to set up Theatre Tickets, and a Little Supper afterwards. At the Races there were always so many men about her that it almost called for a Move On Ordinance, and at Summer Resorts and other places of Public Amusement she was a centre of attraction.

By and by, however, the Foolish Virgin began to grow Wise to the Fact that somehow her system had slipped a cog, and was not working out as she expected.

She observed that, because she knew how to get Around and was not Afraid of Things, the Men she knew let her take care of herself, and did not show her the Attentions they did to Women who were nothing but Womanly.

Worse still she ascertained that while Men asked her to Drink with them they did not ask her to marry them, and while they jollied her about her Freedom and Independence, and said what a Pleasure it was to know a woman to whom they could Talk Freely, when they went to Pick Out a Life Partner they Reniggered on their Theories and Tied Up with a nice Little Girl, who had never Heard of Bernard Shaw and Drank Malted Milk for Supper.

"Without doubt," said the Men who were the Foolish Virgin's friends, "she is an Admirable Creature and a Good Fellow. She is generous and Kind, and has a Really Masculine way of Looking at Subjects, and would know how to Make Excuse for a Fellow who Drank too much and lost his Week's Salary, that was due for the Rent, at Poker, and she would make a splendid Wife for Some Other Man.

The Moral

"But not for me. Nitski. Not much. I prefer my Peaches with the Down still on them, and while I enjoy the Witty Conversation of the Perfect Lady who sits across a Cafe table and drinks with me, she is not the Type of Woman I intend to invite to sit across the Hearthstone from me for Life.

"Although I esteem and Respect her, somehow the idea of Marrying a Girl who is a Poor Imitation of my Bad Little Brother does not Fire My Fancy."

Thus the Good Fellow Girl, who was really very Sweet and Womanly at Heart, was passed by for silly little Snips, who looked Shy and Modest when they were only Stupid, but with whom all the Good Chances fell in Love because they were so Different from Men.

The moral of this is that men have one code of conduct for the women they admire, and another for the women they marry.

Real Beauty Lies in Happiness that Comes from Health

DR. JOSIAH OLDFIELD, an eminent London physician, has written a remarkable article on beauty that is reproduced herewith. He declares that happiness and health make the real beauty.

BY DR. JOSIAH OLDFIELD

YOU ask me who are the beautiful. I answer that they only are beautiful who are healthy and happy.

The longer I live and the more I see of beautiful women the more am I struck with the fact that underneath them all there are traces of one or both of the two great factors—happiness and health—and that where both are combined you may get a beauty of the rarest type.

Beauty is not a thing of tiny feet, all hardened with corns, or a small waist covering an indented liver, or a layer of powder hiding sallowness and spots.

A beautiful woman is something far more real than laces and fripperies, and far more reliable than powder and paint.

Whole Duty of Woman

HEALTH is an essential of beauty—not the negative health, which is "not ill" to-day, but may demand smelling salts and a cup of strong tea and a day in bed tomorrow—but the positive health, which is full of vitality and instinct with life.

Every woman ought to be beautiful. It is a woman's duty to be beautiful, and an ugly woman is a blot upon the landscape of life.

I have come to the conclusion that women who are ugly are so entirely through their own fault, and the fault is generally either laziness or selfishness.

Beauty, like all other good things, is the reward and crown of goodness and toil, and it is only given to those who work as well as wait.

Curse of Indigestion

DYSPEPSIA is the curse of beauty, and a healthy stomach is the centre point of a brilliant complexion.

I remember Lady Paget telling me once that her experience was that the most beautiful-complexioned women were those who ate no meat.

My observations lead me to the same conclusion, but I have learned to add that in order to obtain a healthy skin over the whole body a woman should not only eat fruit, but should avoid wearing flannel next to her.

A fruitarian dietary, rain water to wash in, porous linen undergarments, fresh air, exercise and sunshine will transform a woman's face so that the glimmer of the ruddy apple will begin to peep into the face and the soft richness of the velvet peach will come into the skin.

Ugliness a Crime

IN my opinion so much beauty is within the reach of every woman who will work hard enough to secure it that ugly women should be banished from the land on the ground that they are either too lazy to try or too selfish to give up their hot teas and strong condiments and blood-heating meat dishes.

Happiness is a second essential. A woman should be beautiful to her maid and to her husband, who see her at her worst, or else she is not beautiful.

A bad-tempered, fretful woman soon creates lines and wrinkles and poses which are essentially ugly, and the oftener she gives way to her vice in private the sooner will she lose her apparent beauty, which is only for public eyes.

Pursuing an Ideal

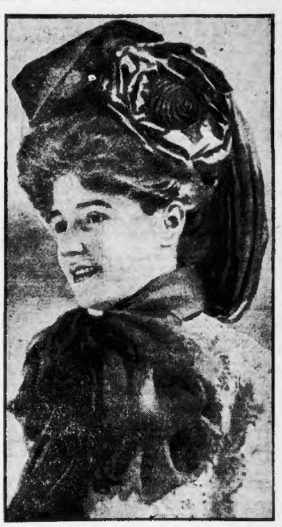
A WOMAN grows old sooner than a man, because she frets over trifles, and every fret leaves its stab on her transient beauty.

If a woman wants to be beautiful let her conscientiously lay before herself some type of beauty which she thinks ideal—I don't mean the "Gibson Girl," which at the moment is every shopgirl's pose.

And sooner or later—sooner than most people think—the plainness will become instinct with charm, and the goddess of her ideal will emerge in growing beauty out of her old ugliness, like the glorious butterfly out of the repulsive caterpillar.

THIS AUTO HAT IS EASY TO DUPLICATE

Worth $20; It Can Be Copied for $10



ONE of the daintiest of automobile hats is a brown felt made from a wide shape, doubled around and about until it assumes the attitude of a small hat, rather pointed in front and turned up saucily at the left, where it is decorated with a gorgeous rosette of brown silk. The veil is attached by being shirred onto a ring which just fits the top of the crown, and from this it hangs to a length of about two yards. This can be deplicated for about $10, and is worth $20.

How to Keep Baby in Perfect Health

Give Him Boiled Water

DO NOT be afraid of giving him too much water to drink, always providing that it has first been boiled and cooled. This latter should never be neglected. Be regular with his feeding.

Mother Must Be Regular

THE nursing mother should endeavor to live a scrupulously regular life, going early to bed and not lying late in the morning. She should begin the day with a bath and a vigorous rubdown, and should never omit her daily walk, which must not be longer than one hour.

Alcohol for Hair

ONE application of common alcohol will kill nits and does not hurt the hair.

To Relieve Itching

FOR relieving the intolerable itching of the red spots called "hives" that generally cover the body, baths of bicarbonate of soda are best, though they may be smoothed with the constant application of cold cream or oil.

A Good Idea for Hallowe'en

AT a children's party recently the lemonade was served in lemon shells which had been made to resemble pigs. A narrow, long slice had been taken from one side of each lemon and from the aperture the juice and pulp had been removed. The opening served as the back of the animal. The pointed end was his nose, with cloves for eyes. Match sticks were stuck in for feet. The slice at the top of the back was returned after the shells were filled, two holes were bored through each and straws were inserted—not a bad idea for Hallowe'en.

ARTISTIC LAMPS

MANY clever women find most beautiful lamps for their drawing rooms or dining rooms by buying a vase of quaint design with a suitable receptacle for oil and having a burner fitted to the top at some lamp establishment. In this way one can easily find pottery to harmonize with the furnishings of the room and have a wider range of choice than by making a selection at the lamp shop.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

BY THE PROFESSOR

COLOR OF EYES

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you please tell me of something good that will make my cheeks fleshy, as they are very hollow; also something that will make my eyes bluish gray, as they are greenish gray now?
B. B.

YOUR first inquiry has been answered already in this column many times. In regard to the changing of the color of your eyes, don't be foolish enough to want it done, if it were possible and safe. Your Creator probably fitted in the color scheme better than you and it will be wiser to be contented with things of that kind and take care of what is given you so well that you will be better looking than if you could get what for the time being you want.

CUCUMBER LOTION

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Having mislaid my copy of the formula for making cucumber cream, I would be grateful if you would repeat it.
H. L. M.

DISSOLVE one dram of shaving cream in a little rosewater. In another vessel mix half a pint of cucumber juice, one and a half ounces of alcohol and three and a half ounces of oil of sweet almonds. In a mortar beat one and three-quarters drams of blanched almonds and slowly work in the shaving cream and rosewater. Strain through a cloth, return to the mortar, gradually add the alcohol mixture and you will have a good cucumber lotion.

CONTROL APPETITE

DEAR PROFESSOR:
I am working in an office where I have not much to do. I have a very good appetite and would like to know how to stop it. I have a few pimples and blackheads on my face.

IT is a good thing to have a good appetite, and I cannot see why you should want to get rid of it. Having a good appetite is no reason why you should eat too much or the wrong kind of food. Control the appetite and regulate your food properly and thank your stars that you can enjoy your food. You probably overeat is the reason why you have pimples, and when you learn to be satisfied with less they will disappear.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

NOT MUCH LIKE LOVE.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a young lady eighteen years old and would like your advice on the following matter: My friend and I have been going out with two young men occasionally whom we happened to know for about six weeks. They invited us out one day, and we could not possibly go out in the afternoon, but promised to meet them in the evening. When we arrived at the place we met them with two other young ladies. We just noticed them, and then refused to have anything further to do with them. Now, do you think that if they cared anything for us, which they claimed they did, that they would act in that manner? We thought a great deal of them, but we have changed our opinions since.
J. B.

IF they really cared for you they most certainly would not treat you as they did. My advice to you and your friends is to have nothing more to do with them. They treated you very rudely.

DO NOT ELOPE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a young man nineteen years old and am deeply in love with a young lady of seventeen, who returns my love. Her parents and mine do not approve our marrying.
I am earning a good salary and feel I can support the girl. She is in favor of our marrying secretly.
Now, I feel very much troubled about this, indeed. What do you think it best to do under the circumstances?
C. M.

DO not dream of anything so foolish as an elopement. It would be the very height of folly. You are both too young to marry for some time to come, and your parents are quite right to oppose your marriage. Be wise about this. Remember that the girl is much too young for you to go against her parents' wishes and you would be guilty of a grave wrong in doing so.

A DOUBTFUL PROSPECT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I hope you will help me by your kind advice. I am a young woman twenty-five years old, and for the past year have received some attention from a gentleman a few years my senior. He has asked me for my company with intentions to marry later. Should I encourage him, as he has no steady employment. He plays the races, whereas I have been accustomed to earning $17 weekly. My friends say I am foolish, having better chances. Still, I am much interested in this gentleman.
PERPLEXED.

I THINK you would be very foolish to marry a man who gambled and had no steady employment. You might find yourself destitute any time. You are earning a good salary, and my advice to you is to stick to your work until some worthy man, who can support you comfortably, asks you to marry him.

THE TURN OF THE BALANCE

A Thrilling Romance of American Life---By Brand Whitlock

CHAPTER XVIII.

ELIZABETH did not go often to the country club, and almost never for any pleasure she herself could find; now and then she went with her father, in order to lure him out of doors; but to-day she had come with Dick, who wanted some fitting destination for his new touring car.

She was finding on a deserted end of the veranda a relief from the Summer heat that for a week had smothered the city. A breeze was blowing off the river, and she lay back languidly in her wicker chair and let it play upon her brow.

In her lap lay an open book, but she was not reading it nor meditating on it; she held it in readiness to ward off interruption; her reputation as a reader of books, while it made her formidable to many and gave her an unpopularity that was more and more grieving her mother, had its compensation—people would not often intrude upon a book.

She looked off across the river. On its smooth surface tiny sailboats were moving; on the opposite bank there was the picturesque windmill of a farmhouse, white against the bright green.

The slender young oak trees were rustling in the wind; the links were dotted with players in white, and the distant flags and fluttering guidons that marked hidden putting greens.

Then suddenly Marriott was before her. He had come in from the links, and he stood now bareheaded, glowing from his exercise, folding his arms on the veranda rail. His forearms were blazing red from their first burning of the season, and his nose was burned red, giving him a merry look that made Elizabeth smile.

"My! but you're burned!" she exclaimed.

"Am I?" said Marriott, pleased.

"Yes—like a mower," she added, remembering some men working in a field that had fled past them as they came out in the automobile. She remembered she had fancied the men were burned brown as golfers, and she had some half-formed notion of a sentence she might turn at the expense of a certain literary school that viewed life thus upside down. She might have gone on then and talked it over with Marriott, but her brain was too tired; she could moralize just then no further than to say:

Trying to Forget

"You don't deserve to be burned as a mower—your work isn't as hard."

"No," said Marriott, "it isn't work at all—it's exercise; it's a substitute for the work I should be doing." A look of disgust came to his face.

She did not wish then to talk seriously; she was trying to forget problems, and she and Marriott were always discussing problems.

"It's absurd," Marriott was saying. "I do this to get the exercise I ought to get by working, by producing something—the exercise is the end, not an incident of the means. You don't see any of these farmers around here playing golf. They're too tired——"

"Gordon," said Elizabeth, "I'm going away."

"Where to?" he asked, looking up suddenly.

"To Europe," she said.

"Europe! Why, when? You must have decided hurriedly."

"Yes, the other night after I came home from Mr. Parrish's—we decided rather quickly—or papa decided for us."

"Well," Marriott exclaimed again, "that's fine!"

He looked away toward the first tee, where his caddie was waiting for him. He beckoned and the boy came with his bag.

"Tell Mr. Phillips I'll not play any more. I'll see him later."

The caddie took up the bag and went lazily away, stopping to take several practice swings with one of Marriott's drivers. The boy was always swinging this club in the hope that Marriott would give it to him.

Marriott placed his hands on the rail, sprang over it, and drew up a chair.

"Well, this is sudden," he said, "but it's fine for you." He took up a cigarette. "How did it happen?"

"Do you want the real reason?" she asked.

"Of course; I've a passion for the real."

"I'm going in order to get away."

Marriott was sheltering in his palms a match for his cigarette. He looked up suddenly, the cigarette still between his lips.

"Away from what?"

"Oh, from—everything!" She waved her hands despairingly. Marriott did not understand.

"That's it," she said, looking him in the eyes. He saw that she was very serious. He lighted his cigarette and flung away the match that was just beginning to burn his fingers.

"I'm going to run away; I'm going to forget for a whole Summer. I'm going to have a good time. When I come back in the Fall I'm going to the Charity Bureau and do some work, but until then——"

"Who's going with you?" asked Marriott. He had thought of other things to say, but decided against them.

"Mamma."

"And your father?"

"Oh, he can't go. He and Dick will stay at home."

"Then you won't shut up the house?"

"No, we'll let the maids go, but we've got Gusta Koerner to come in every day and look after things. I'm glad for her sake—and ours. We can trust her."

"I should think Dick would want to go."

"No, he has this new automobile now, and he says, too, that he can't leave the bank." She smiled as she thought of the seriousness with which Dick was regarding his new duties.

"Then you'll not go to Mackinac?"

"No, we'll close the cottage this Summer. Papa doesn't want to go there without us, and——"

"But Dick will miss his yacht."

Moralless Mothers and "Affinities"

By Winifred Black

A NEW YORK woman whose daughter ran away with a married man a few weeks ago has gone to live with her daughter and the married man in their cosey little flat in Harlem, or Brooklyn, or wherever it is that people live when they elope with affinities and rent a cosey little flat.

The woman who is countenancing and approving her daughter's disgrace says she wishes other people would mind their own business. "My daughter and this man are affinities," she told a reporter the other day, "and they are obeying a higher law than any which has ever been made by man when they defy conventions, throw aside the cold world and live only for each other. I glory in their courage."

Well, well, we have found the seedless orange, the fuzzless peach, and now we seem to be developing the moralless mamma.

The world moves—the world moves.

I'm afraid I don't quite approve of this particular moralless mamma.

She's simply an old, old type in a brand-new dress.

Once, many years ago, in San Francisco, I saw a beautiful sixteen-year-old girl selling drinks in a dive.

"How did you come to get into such a place?" said I to the sixteen-year-old girl.

"Mamma brought me," said the girl, smiling across the fetid room to a painted and bedizened wreck of womanhood. "She's been here for nearly twenty years."

Somehow the moralless mamma always finds it convenient to be conventional enough—unless there's money in being unconventional.

The lady who is so interested in her daughter's affinity wouldn't care a snap for him if he didn't have money to furnish her own particular room in this particular flat particularly well.

A woman who loves money will do anything on earth to get it—even sell her own daughter.

If she's ignorant she will pretend that every woman does the same thing, and that she is only different from the mother of the Gracchi because she is more honest and outspoken than Cordelia.

If she is what she likes to be called well-bred, she will insist upon a wedding ring as a part of the bargain—but she will sell her daughter just the same.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

Houghton & Dutton will ask but 29 cents for their 39-cent corset covers of fine nainsook, neatly trimmed with insertion and lace or embroidery, with ribbon drawn through. They have both the French and tight backs.

Thursday morning MacDonnell's Tremont Temple Store will place on sale the balance of a big Summer stock of white lawn dressing sacques at 69 cents. This is an excellent opportunity to get a $1.25 dressing sacque for 69 cents. This price is for Thursday only.

Filene's will offer for 79 cents a lot of chemises, with lace and embroidery insertion in yoke, skirt trimmed with lace.

SKIRTS

W. H. Brine Co. will have for $3.98 a line of sample skirts of cheviot, serge and broadcloth, in all colors, worth $5 and $6. Most of them are the full side-plaited kind and some have folds at the bottom.

Plummer's will offer to-morrow a lot of strictly tailored all-wool nun's veiling waists, tucked back and front, with long sleeves and button back, in all the popular shades—regular $2.95 values for $1.95.

At Vorenberg's there will be on sale genuine stag handle steak sets of two pieces, guaranteed steel, reduced from $1.50 to 89 cents, for one day only.

A. Shuman Co. offer $2.50 lawn waists with embroidered and tucked fronts, button back and three-quarter length sleeves for $1.50.

SUITS

Gilchrist's have a bargain in two-piece percale suits. The waist is trimmed with tucks and the good full skirt is finished with a nine-inch flounce at bottom. These are good $1.25 values, marked down to 79 cents for one day.

Butler's will offer to-morrow silk belts in plain colors, colored dots and Roman stripes, with solid gilt buckles, for 12½ cents each. This is less than half price.

At Jordan Marsh Co.'s to-morrow there will be on sale a lot of nun's veiling waists of three different styles, strictly tailored, embroidered and lace trimmed, in black, white and colors—special price for this sale $1.95.

CHAPTER III.

HAVING collected a great volume of notes, I began to question the Misses Van Alston at length.

Miss Cobbett, they said, had shown exceptional talent at the school theatrical preformances, and had made a special study of plays and the drama. They knew she had received several offers from theatrical managers in New York and that she had corresponded with others. They did not know how far she had gone in her fancy for the stage.

I then took up the matter of Aubrey Colston.

He had called at the school and seen Miss Cobbett, in the reception room only the day before she disappeared.

They had half an hour's chat, at the end of which they parted in good spirits.

"Had Miss Cobbett any chum at the school?" I asked.

No, the Misses Van Alston asserted in chorus. She had always kept herself apart from the girls. Once, a year ago, she had been intimate with a young Russian girl at the school. The Russian, however, proved to be too eccentric for the Misses Van Alstons, and had been suspended indefinitely.

"She was an anarchist," explained Miss Elizabeth Van Alston, "or something of that character."

"She and Miss Cobbett read a number of violent works together, "explained Miss Mary Van Alston, "that we did not approve."

"Miss Cobbett was very angry when we found it impossible to allow Miss Krozapow to remain," observed Miss Elizabeth Van Alston.

Miss Cobbett had made no mention of having received threatening letters. Nor had either of the Misses Van Alston to their knowledge, ever noticed, in sorting the mail, any such envelopes as might be supposed to have contained the letters in red ink, found in Miss Cobbett's desk.

I continued this line of investigation for some time, without definite result and finally decided to look over the grounds.

The Ladder

Apparently the same disregard for secrecy was evident here. The ladder, which still stood against the side of the house, was a huge affair used to trim the trees of the grove at the back of the grounds. It had been brought, evidently, from a shed at the rear of the conservatory, about one hundred feet to one side of the school.

At the base of the ladder were two plain prints of wheels. Evidently, from the depths of the impressions, the vehicle to which the wheels belonged was either a heavy carriage with rubber tires or a motor car. Owing to the rain the tracks were clear and well defined, running to the road down the driveway.

"All you heard was a slight crushing sound?" I asked Miss Mary Van Alston. "You heard no sound like an automobile?"

"No," she said, positively; "not a sound except the crushing of the gravel."

"It is evident then," I concluded, "that an electric motor car was used. For there is no sign of a hoof print all the way to the road."

"I watched the opening where the drive enters the road," she replied, "hoping to catch a glimpse of the vehicle as it got under the electric light. But it did not appear."

This set me guessing for a moment, until I saw my error. The tracks ran from the road, instead of to it. Therefore how the machine had left was still a mystery. I made a closer inspection of the lawn and found faint tracks on the grass of the return trip of the machine to the road at an angle with the house. It had slipped into the road at one side of the grounds, while Miss Van Alston was looking straight ahead.

"Now, Miss Elizabeth," I began, on returning from the lawn, "there is but one piece of information missing. That is, what sound awakened you?"

The spinster shifted uneasily in her chair, looked at her sister, gulped a sob and wiped her red eyes.

"I can't say," she said from the depths of her handkerchief. "I have tried so hard to remember, too."

The Sound

"It wasn't a scream?" I suggested.

"No-o."

"Was it a cry for help?"

"I would have remembered it if it had been," she thought.

"Was it a whisper?"

"That would not have awakened me," she was quite positive.

"Now think for a moment. You and your sister are in charge of a number of high-spirited young women. You had seen them all in their beds and in order for the night, before you retired. What sound would alarm you most at night?"

Miss Elizabeth looked hesitatingly at her sister and meditated anxiously.

"I am always uneasy," she said slowly, "after I go to bed, about the way the girls carry on sometimes. They will make fudge in their rooms at night and it just ruins their stomachs."

Miss Mary Van Alston smiled condescendingly.

"Bessie hunts fudge parties in her sleep," she said.

"There, I knew you would laugh at me," ejaculated Miss Elizabeth, dejectedly. "When I awakened I felt sure there was a fudge party on."

"What are the outward and invisible signs of a fudge party," I asked.

"I don't know," she answered. "Generally I hear a little giggling in the hall and then all is quiet."

"Do you think you heard any giggling last night?"

"Yes, I did think I heard some one giggling," she said, suddenly, with a look of defiance at her sister; "now, I've said it. I did!"

(To Be Continued To-morrow.)

CONTEST CONDITIONS

THIS story will run through the week. The final chapter, in which the mystery will be solved, will be printed in next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN.

The only day on which no instalment of the story will appear will be Saturday. The next to the last chapter will be printed Friday, and then everybody will have until 6 p. m. Saturday in which to solve the mystery.

The person who solves the mystery most accurately will receive the first prize of $50.

If no one solves the mystery accurately, the one who comes nearest to a correct solution will receive the first prize.

REMEMBER

That this is a test of SKILL IN THINKING, not skill in writing. All you have to do to win first prize is to THINK OUT the solution of the mystery QUICKER than somebody else. The literary merit of the answers will not be considered.

That in case two or more answers are equally correct, the prizes will be awarded ACCORDING TO THE POSTMARKS ON THE ENVELOPES, the one mailed first receiving the first prize, etc.

That persons living at a distance from Boston have just as good a chance to win prizes as those who live right in Boston.

NO ANSWER POSTMARKED LATER THAN 6 P. M. SATURDAY WILL BE CONSIDERED.

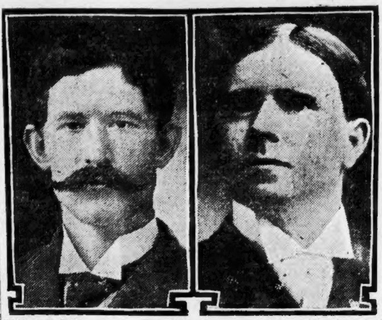
COTTON REPORT SHOWS FALLING OFF

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The Census Bureau to-day announced that 1,430,265 bales of cotton had been ginned from the growth of 1907, to September 25, as compared with 2,057,283 bales to the corresponding date last year. The total number of active ginneries reporting was 16,307, as compared with 20,416. About 2,000 ginneries were not heard from on account of the telegraph strike.

Old Party Followers Promise Support to Thomas L. Hisgen



William H. Butler, secretary Wakefield Independence League. Thomas J. Lally, president Wakefield Independence League.

WAKEFIELD, Oct. 2.—Men of all parties expect the Independence League to poll a big vote here, and many members of old parties say they will vote for Thomas L. Hisgen if he is nominated for Governor. The local League polled nearly 400 votes at the recent caucus and astonished politicians by the strength of the organization.

Thomas J. Lally, a prominent business man and a member of the Board of Sewer Commissioners, is president. Other officers are: Harry F. Peck, vice-president; William H. Butler, member of the Water Board and a business man, secretary, while the treasurer is George W. Killorin, a big contractor.

Wakefield is a town with a population of about 14,000, and its independent spirit is shown by the fact that, although a Republican community, it has elected Representative Charles A. Dean, a Democrat, to the General Court for eleven years. He has been indorsed for re-election by the Independence League.

At the caucus Messrs. Butler and Killorin and Everett W. Fisher were elected delegates to the State convention in Faneuil Hall on October 3.

What is thought of the League is expressed by Joseph Dinan, a leading business man. He said:

"The Independence League is the coming party here as well as all over the country. No more of the old parties for me. Hereafter I shall be an independent voter."

Hitherto Mr. Dinan has been a strong and influential Democrat. Many other Wakefield Democrats think as he does.

President Lally said: "The League will make a good showing at the polls, and we have begun to lay out the town in districts in order to conduct a house to house canvass."

Next Sunday the Wakefield League will hold an outing at Lynnfield, near Suntaug Pond. Among the speakers will be President Lally and Secretary Butler.

BLIND WOMAN BURNED DEAD

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Oct. 2.—A blind woman, Mary Ellen Hanley, sixty-seven years old, was burned to a crisp to-day while attempting to light the kitchen fire.

It was the eldest of the Foleys, a boy of ten, who ran into the street for help.

But two more games to finish out the schedule on the home grounds and the Hub fans are wondering if they will see what a win looks like before the final call.

The Browns must have taken the tip from the Naps and the Tigers and the Sox and intend to grab all they can from the toboggan shooters, as they opened up with those symptoms and only used a kid pitcher to turn the trick on the local prides.

Now the Browns will use some of that well-seasoned box material for the next couple of games, and if the Pilgrims can't hit green pitchers they won't be able to touch some of the veteran stock labelled Dinneen, Petty and Howell.

It will be the sixteenth straight to-day unless something unforseen happens to stop the game.

Last Games Are Keen.

The style of the last few contests has been equal to some of the midseason performances, little slip-ups coming at critical spots changing the whole complexion of the result against the home contenders. Manager McGuire has given about all his cub pitchers a trial now, and a good move to-day would be sending Cy Morgan in against his old teammates. He did them up the last time he was used and would extend himself to duplicate the feat.

Joe Harris was given an opportunity to show what improvement he gained being with the Providence boys all season, and though the game was against him 2 to 1, his work was gilt-edge. He only walked two and fanned five, while the Browns only totalled four hits. He fielded his position well, but was not exactly a Nick Altrock in getting over to first base.

Young Bill Bailey, the Texas kid, who is yet in his teens, had the Pilgrims guessing from the start and outside of the sixth they could do nothing with him.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

The Browns play the game like the late visitors in the Hub.

Bill Dinneen, looking pretty weighty, was greeted by his old teammates. Bill will probably pitch one of the games.

Freddy Parent saved a shutout by his two-bagger in the sixth, scoring Lord.

Lord had his eye on the ball and stung the ball for a couple of safeties.

He made a pickup off Jones that was a beauty and got the ball to second for a force out.

George Stone could not land on Harris. He was lucky to beat out a hit and lose his reputation. Harris fanned him in the eighth.

Bobby Wallace is a treasure for any team. He can lay down the best bunts and is greased lightning in fielding stunts.

With a man on third he did not hammer the ball, but pushed a slow one towards first which got the run which put the Browns in the lead.

It looked good for tying the score in the sixth after Parent scored Lord with a two-bagger and Congalton, Grimshaw and Ferris up, but they couldn't bring in the necessary tally.

Pitcher Dygert of the Athletics

Dygert, the Athletics' pitcher, after being knocked out of the box by the Tigers in the great 17-inning game, went to the rubber in the first contest with the Naps and won, 4 to 0, allowing only four hits.

SALVIDERE MADE RECORD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Salvidere easily won the cup preliminary, 1¾ miles, at Brighton Beach yesterday, and in doing so made a new track record of 2:30 4-5. The world's record is 2:30½, made by Goodrich at Chicago in 1898. Ballot, the 1 to 3 favorite, went out in front early and forced a fast pace, but at the end of the mile Salvidere moved up and won out by six lengths.

This afternoon the Harvard eleven will get its first game of the season and they expect to romp off with victory, as they are much heavier than their opponents from Bowdoin. The game will start on Soldiers' Field at 4 o'clock.

The Crimson team will play many substitutes, but the chances are that an opportunity will be given to size up the possibilities of the team. The men haven't had any real work up to date, and their action in the first game of the season is not expected to be fast.

Last season the Harvard team defeated the Bowdoin team in a game which was marked by plenty of work in the open by a score of 10 to 0.

The officials for the game will be: Referee, J. B. Pendleton, of Bowdoin; Umpire, W. H. Langford, of Trinity, and field judge, F. Burleigh, of Exeter.

Three new men have joined the squad. They are J. E. McGillicuddy, an end; J. L. Merrill, a quarter, and Fulton Cutting, a halfback. Merrill played quarterback for Boston Latin School and is a good man. Cutting was the best back on the 1909 freshman team.

TORONTO WINS CLASS A TITLE

COLUMBUS, Oct. 2.—By defeating Columbus of the American Association League here yesterday by a score of 6 to 3, the Toronto team of the Eastern League won the Class A championship. The victory made four out of five for the visitors, the only game won by the locals being by a score of 6 to 5. The feature of the final game was the scoring of Thoney, who will play next season with the Boston Americans, from first on a single by Kelley.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2.—Anxious to break the long string of defeats they have received at the hands of the Cardinals, the Doves will enter to-day's contest, which is the last Western game of the season for them, determined to put up a gilt-edge article of ball and carry off the honors, making a good closing for the season away from home.

The Bostons have no game on their schedule for to-morrow, as they will spend the day traveling to the Hub from this city. On Friday they will meet the Dodgers in three games, which will end the National League season for them.

"Young Cy" Young, who has been doing fairly good work lately, will most likely be the man selected by Manager Tenney to face the local swatter, while Beebe or McGlynn will do the fire-line work for the visitors.

Bostons Beaten, 2 to 1.

The Bostons dropped another game here yesterday by a score of 2 to 1. Karger, the crack pitcher of the local team, did the pitching for the Cardinals, while Frock, a newcomer from the Worcester (New England League) team, did the flinging for the Beaneaters.

Frock pitched brilliantly for the visiting combination. Only three hits were made off him, all of these coming in the opening inning, when the home talent made their two runs on a home and two singles. The Boston recruit certainly looked like a champion, and the only fault in his work was a liberality in issuing passes.

How the Cardinals Scored.

With Boston down in order in the first inning, Barry drew a pass in St. Louis's half and stole second. Byrne did his share by sacrificing, his bunt going toward third, and Brain just managed to nip him at first. Koney got in a single to left and Barry scampered home. Koney tried to steal second, but was out. Delehanty drove the ball to the bulletin board and circled the bases, Ball ruining any chance there might have been to stop him by allowing the ball to get away from him on a relay throw. St. Louis did not score again.

What important history Boston made in the game is recorded in the second inning, and it looked then as thought Karger would be lucky to get off with a tied score.

Beaumont opened the second inning with as pretty a line drive as anyone could ask for, and Sweeney came along with a hot grounder which got away from Koney. Randall tried to sacrifice, but his bunt went to Karger and the latter made a good throw to third. The ball got away from Byrne and the sacks were filled with none out. Bridwell raised a short fly and Shaw made a clever catch so close that Beaumont held third. Ball fanned. Then Beaumont started for the plate on a steal, but Karger saw what was coming and made a quick throw to Noonan. The latter had Beaumont caught off third, but let the ball slip out of his hands, Beaumont scoring. Karger pulled himself out of the hole by striking out Frock for the third out.

Andrews up, went an exhibition mile against time on a half-mile track and equaled the world's record, 2:07, held by herself, going the distance in 2:07 and lowering the local record of 2:08¼, held by George G. DECISION THAT AUTOS CAN RUN OVER NANTUCKET ROADS MAY CAUSE WAR

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The decision handed down by the Superior Court in the case of Nantucket vs. F. J. Tyler cannot help but be of interest to every man who motors, as it in a way defines the use of motor vehicles on the island of Nantucket.

This, it will be remembered, is the instance where Frank J. Tyler drove his Maxwell touring car over the island in violation of the local ordinances, which prohibited the use of automobiles on the roads of Nantucket. In the Municipal Court Tyler was found guilty, but in the Superior Court the decision was reversed, the reversal being made on a point of law. Under this decision motors can be driven over the streets of the island. This is a great victory for the Bostonian.

It is now reasonable to suppose that the selectmen of Nantucket will enact similar ordinances to those now in vogue. If they do then the Highway Commissioners will be invited to set them aside, as it did in the first instance, and a merry war may result.

* * *

There is every reason to believe that the Ormond tournament will next year be held in the month of March. Arrangements for the several events of the tournament are now being formulated. The stock cars will have every oportunity to see what they can do in long distance events at that meeting, while there will be every chance for the stripped chassis to do some fine work.

* * *

Tug of War Hill in Crawford's Notch is to receive considerable attention from the road builders of New Hampshire within the next few weeks. The surface is to be regraded and the knob removed from the top, so that next season one of the most dreaded sections of the White Mountain touring district will have lost some of its terrors for the motorists.

* * *

While the modern motor car no longer needs any test or demonstration to prove that it is a practically perfect road vehicle, the majority of the exhibitors at the coming show of the Automobile Club of America, which will be held in the Grand Central Palace during the week of October 24-31, are unanimously in favor of continuing the time-honored custom of giving practical demonstrations of their cars to such as ask for them.

While they admit the force of the argument that there is no real need of demonstrations, they say that the public ask for them and so long as the purchasers of cars really demand these tests there is no reason why they should not be given. They also say that this is the first year in the history of automobile shows where the weather conditions and the season of the year have favored such tests. This is true as heretofore all of the shows have been held in December or January when the snow was on the ground and very few people could be induced to ride in the cars. This year the show will be held in October, the ideal touring month of the year, when the prospective purchaser would really be delighted with a trip into the country. Not only this, but unless all signs fail the six-cylinder cars will be a feature of this year's shows and the Automobile Club is particularly fortunate in the fact that no less than fifteen distinct types of six-cylinder cars, representing an equal number of factories will be on exhibition at the Grand Central Palace show.

RUBE WADDELL SLATED TO FACE INDIANS TO-DAY

BATTING ORDER.

CLEVELAND.	ATHLETICS.
Flick, r.f.	Hartsel, l.f.
Bradley, 3b.	Nicholls, s.s.
Nill, s.s.	Seybold, r.f.
Lajoie, 2b.	Davis, 1b.
Bemis, c.	Murphy, 2b.
Hinchman, l.f.	J. Collins, 3b.
Birmingham, c.f.	Oldring, c.f.
Lister, 1b.	Schreck, c.
Berger, p.	Waddell, p.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—Rube Waddell will probably pitch for the Athletics in this afternoon's game, which is the second in the series with the Clevelands. Waddell has not been doing very good work recently, but he is so eccentric that he is apt to go in the box at any time and pitch a shutout contest.

Liebhardt, the Southern gent, will most likely do the pitching for the Naps, who have been beaten so many times lately that the are getting rather tired of it and want a victory to vary the monotony.

Dygert was on the firing line for the home team yesterday and he only allowed the visitors four hits, one of which was a double, winning, 4 to 0. The only time that the Indians really threatened to do damage was in the ninth when they had the bases filled with two men out, but the next batter up, Birmingham, was thrown out on an easy grounder to Murphy.

Berger started to twirl for the Naps, but he was hit so freely in the first and second innings that Rhoades was sent into the rescue and he was able to fare much better than his predecessor.

JIMMY WALSH OUTFOUGHT BABE CULLEN AT CHELSEA

Hub boxers put it on a quartette of New Yorkers who came over to the Winnisimmet Club at Chelsea last night to try conclusions in ring culture.

Jimmy Walsh, the star bantam of the East, was many shades better than Babe Cullen who opposed him in the main bout of ten rounds; Jimmy's brother, Charlie, who is just out of the amateur ranks, had a good margin over Eddie Smith of New York; Fred Mason, the Chelsea bantam, held his own with Willie Schumaker, the crack little German slasher of Gotham, but Joe Wagner saved his crew a shutout by besting Henry Meirs of Charlestown.

The result was very satisfactory to the fight fans, who had a chance to size up the relative merits of the type of mitt jammers of the two cities.

Cullen Stayed Limit.

There was some doubt that Babe Cullen would go the entire distance with such a rugged boy as Jimmy Walsh and some bets were made that way. The bout did nearly terminate in the second round and the fans were preparing to leave, as Cullen was down twice for the count and the bell saved his mutton. Somehow he pulled himself together, but it was a case of staying the rest of the distance by a foxy move on his part. Holding his left hand like a pointer, he kept it sticking in Jimmy's eyes to blind him and stop him from coming in. It bothered Walsh a bit, as he was outreached and Cullen saved himself a bunch of trouble by some clever ducking when Walsh did manage to break through and swing for the head. Cullen knew better than to mix it with Walsh and he was satisfied to make it a stand-off fight, looking to his defence first and attacking as a secondary consideration.

As a boxer Cullen might well pass, as he possessed good headwork and was shifty on his feet, but he had no effective punch and was continually pawing the air with his left, or rubbing his glove against Jimmy's face.

Walsh Scores Knockdown.

In the opening round Cullen appeared at his best, poking straight lefts to the head and shooting over a right cross to the jaw that lacked weight. He did pretty well till Jimmy snapped over a left hook to the jaw which checked him a bit. In the second round Jimmy again flashed over a left hook and Cullen went down and was hardly on his feet when he was sent to the mat again. Walsh had a good chance to finish him, but allowed him to rally and the bell rang. There was no steam left in Cullen, and Jimmy caught him again in the fourth round with a left hook to the jaw, and he went down just as the bell sounded.

For the remaining rounds Cullen was instructed to run around and keep Jimmy away, which he succeeded in doing, but in the wind-up Walsh went at the job and waded in with either hand and at the end Cullen was pretty well done up. A smash to the eye made a substantial looking trademark of one of Jimmy's hooks.

Charlie Walsh showed a nice left hand against Smith. He rarely missed and also planted some solid right hooks to the body.

Schumaker displayed more experience than Mason, and his fancy footwork, combined with ability to duck Mason's swings, made the latter look foolish at times, but Mason was full of aggressiveness and never let up forcing. He put both hands over in the fifth and had Schumaker hanging on to get out of his fog. Schumaker scored often with a straight left, which Mason was constantly running into, but the former was guilty of some wrestling tactics which were not on the bill.

Wagner was too strong for Meirs. He scored a knockdown in the second round and in the last two rounds rushed into him with left and right smashes, while Meirs stood like a wooden post, taking them in a dazed fashion.

Joe Cummings, the B. A. A. referee, was the third man in the ring and ran things smoothly.

KILLIAN MAY TOE MARK FOR TIGERS TO-DAY

BATTING ORDER.

WASHINGTON.	DETROIT.
Milan, c.f.	Jones, l.f.
Ganley, l.f.	Schaefer, 2b.
Delehanty, 2b.	Crawford, c.f.
Kay, r.f.	Cobb, r.f.

Warner, c.	Coughlin, 3b.
O'Brien, s.s.	Payne, c.
Shipke, 3b.	O'Leary, s.s.
Smith, p.	Killian, p.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Ed Killian, the clever southpaw of the Detroits will most likely be the man selected by Manager Jennings to pitch against the Senators this afternoon. He can usually be depended upon to pitch a good game, and with the good fielding and batting which the Tigers usually back up their twirlers, the visitors can be expected to win another game.

The Senators are playing good ball nowadays, and they expect to annex the honors to-day, as Manager Cantillon intends to send Smith to the rubber this afternoon, the latter being one of the home team's winning pitchers.

The Detroits won yesterday, 5 to 3, and incidentally showed their staying qualities. With two down in the sixth, and the score 3 to 1 against them, Cobb began a batting rally with a single. Rossman doubled. Coughlin did a like stunt, both runners crossing the plate tieing the score. Schmidt singled, sending Coughlin home, which put the score 4 to 3 in favor of the Tigers.

Detroit clinched the game the next inning, Schaefer scoring after two were out on his single, steal and Crawford's single.

Johnson, the Idaho wonder, pitched for the locals, but the visitor didn't have much trouble in finding him, while Siever grew better as the game wore on.

CHICAGO, 2; NEW YORK, 1.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Chicago defeated New York in a close eleven-inning game, 2 to 1, here yesterday. The visitors scored in the first inning, but Chicago tied the score in the ninth after two men were out and then won in the eleventh.

JOHNNY MOONEY IS MATCHMAKER

A popular move has been made by the Rhode Island Athletic Club of Thornton, R. I., in securing Johnny Mooney to make matches there in the future. Mooney is without doubt one of the best qualified judges of boxers in America, and it is safe to say that he will more than fill the bill.

Johnny has been connected with the boxing game for several years, and in that time he has connected with such clubs as the Criterions and Boston Athletic Association and the Lincoln Club of Chelsea. He has also successfully handled such fistic stars as Honey Mellody, Kid Goodman, Hugo Kelly, Abe Attell, Patsy Sweeny and Austin Rice. He has traveled extensively through different parts of the country and always met with success. The Rhode Island Club is to hold first-class boxing shows every two weeks during the Winter, commencing Monday, October 14, and some of the best men in America will perform there.

WAKEFIELD HIGH NINE WON.

WAKEFIELD, Oct. 2.—Wakefield High defeated Woburn High on the park in a closely contested game, 4 to 3. Each pitcher had eleven strikeouts, while only six hits were made off Harrington to eight off J. Doherty, of Woburn.

YALE WILL PLAY WESLEYAN TEAM

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 2.—Yale will have its first hard game of the season to-day when it meets the strong Wesleyan eleven. It will be the first real test of the men seeking to lead the blue to victory this year.

GRIDIRON GAMES WANTED.

The Playfairs of Chelsea challenge any 125-pound team within twenty-five miles of Chelsea. Will give or take half fares. Maurice Smith, 161 Everett avenue, Chelsea, Mass.

The Clinker A. C. football team have again reorganized for the season of 1907 and desires to arrange games with 140-pound teams on home grounds. Will give full expenses or reasonable guarantee. John R. Hurley, 23 Court street, Boston.

The Clinton A. A. would like to arrange games with eighty-five-pound teams. Daniel Quinlan, 11 Crafts street, Newtonville.

BENEFIT GAME ON SATURDAY

A fast and hotly contested game is expected Saturday at the American League Grounds, when the crack team composed of Commercial Telegraph Operators will cross bats with the Somerville A. A. This is a benefit game in aid of the striking telegraphers. Arthur Graham, a Somerville lad, will toe the rubber for Somerville and Andy O'Connor, formerly of the New England League, will do the twirling for the operators. A large crowd is expected to see the game, which begins at o'clock.

Notes of the Harness Horses

Joseph Swendeman, chairman of the race committee of the Dorchester Driving Club, says that the devotees of speedway racing are certain to see a contest between his Genevieve and E. A. O'Neil's pacing gelding Fitzgerald at the Franklin Field course, likely on Saturday, October 5, if agreeable to O'Neil. Both of the pacers have a lot of friends in Greater Boston that will crowd to the speedway to see which is the faster.

T. Lee Quimby has charge of the arrangements for the party of Boston horsemen who intend visiting the Lexington, Ky., race meeting of October 8 to 19, inclusive. Already twenty-seven have notified him they will include in the party, which will just fill the special car comfortably. They leave Boston on Saturday, October 5, at a little after 1 o'clock, which gives them Monday to visit the stock farms in Lexington and vicinity.

C. K. G. Billings only owns Lou Dillon and her recent foal in the horse line at present, but he recently told a friend that love of the trotter runs in the blood, so that possibly another season may see him with another full stable for the matinees.

The South Boston delegation returned from White Plains, N. Y., in high spirits over the victory of the veteran trotter from their district, Ralph Wick, which headed the summary of the 2:14 class after five heats, taking the three final heats, the last one in 2:15¾.

Locust Jack stepped the fastest heat for a trotter over a half-mile track this year at White Plains, N. Y., when he won the second heat of the 2:28 class in 2:11.

The pacer Northern Spy, 2:15½, is called by horsemen the best campaigner that has been bred in Maine for several seasons. He was sired by Vassar, 2:07, the stallion that James Galvin had at old Mystic Park a number of years ago.

M. L. Bryson, of West Newton, believes he has secured a sure enough winner in the pacer Prince Alfondly, that he picked up in the Provinces a short time ago.

Secretary George J. Dietrich, of Cleveland, is in Boston for a week looking after the interests of the futurities offered by the American Association of Trotting Horse Breeders, that close next December. It is anticipated that the two stakes will prove the largest money events ever decided on an American track.

Kastos, the trotter which won two races in one week recently, was purchased from the Allen Farm for $125 when he was a two-year-old.

T. D. Hidden, of Sharon Springs, N. Y., has booked six mares to Todd, 2:14¾, for next year. Will Milam is the foreman and trainer at Hiddenhurst Farm.

The Leading Lady (2), 2:17, is going to have her work cut out for her in the Futurity at Lexington in order to take the big end of the stake, as the latest is that Will Evans has worked Henry Setzer, one of her opponents, a mile in 2:11. He is a son of Todd.

Not only has Peter the Great, 2:07¼, come to the front as one of the greatest sires in the country of youngsters, but he has a pretty fair aged trotter out this year in Icon, 2:11¼.

The owner of Manager H., 2:09½, keeps starting him every week in the three-year-old pacing stakes, in spite of the fact that each time the colt is protested as being a four-year-old. He will have a lot of money pending when his case goes before the board of review in December at the rate it is piling up.

Lightning struck the stables at the Columbus track the other night and instantly killed Emerly Letcher, 2:13¾, owned by the Cecil Brothers, Danville, Ky., and Miss Maria, 2:11¾, was injured so badly she had to be destroyed. She was the property of Trainer Cril Davis, and could trot in 2:07.

Cold Piano Facts

We don't make any pianos. We don't advertise any special pianos. We have nothing special to say about any piano in particular. The Piano Trust is fighting us and we are fighting the Piano Trust tooth and nail. We ask no mercy—we expect none—and we give none. Trust pianos are fine, in fact some of the finest pianos in the world are in the Trust, and we sell these same pianos every week at Trust-fighting prices—Lower, away lower by many dollars than you can buy them any place in this wide world. We lose money, they say. Well, that's our business. What do you care? You buy while the fight is on; never mind our losses. We'll take care of ourselves. Come this week and see the fight.

Wages, $200 a Year

This Makes You Angry? It May Also CHEER You Up

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

The following advertisement is published:

WANTED—Bright boy, 15 to 18, in dry goods commission business; good opportunity to learn business; salary $200 per year to start.

Sometimes, to know how the world changes, we must study ourselves and our own emotions. For instance, that advertisement irritates the average man.

It seems outrageous to think of employing a youth fifteen or eighteen years old to work for two hundred dollars a year, less than four dollars a week. We feel that if man wants to get labor so cheap as that, he ought to be ashamed to advertise the fact to the world.

A boy of eighteen, almost a man, cannot feed, clothe and house himself on such a salary.

The advertisement means that the advertiser intends that the boy's father and mother shall help keep that boy, while he works for his employer. Not a very pretty idea. When the mother and father have brought a boy up to the age of useful working, the man that hires the boy should be willing at least to give him enough to feed, clothe and house himself, without asking the father and mother to go on helping.

The average man reads with impatience such an advertisement. But he ought also to remember, as proof of our wonderful progress, that it is not yet a hundred years since a President of the United States, and a pretty good man, as prosperous people went in those days, WAS COMPLAINING BITTERLY AT A PUBLIC DINNER BECAUSE HE COULD NO LONGER HIRE A FIRST-RATE WORKING MAN FOR SIXTY DOLLARS PER YEAR.

He thought the country was going to the dogs if you couldn't hire a man to work a year for sixty dollars, and be grateful for the chance.

Quite a change in a century. At the other end of that period, a really good man thought sixty dollars a year enough for a hard-working, full-grown employe. And now, ninety-nine men out of a hundred consider it outrageous that TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS A YEAR SHOULD BE OFFERED TO A BOY IN HIS TEENS.

CERTAINLY THIS WORLD PROGRESSES, and these little advertisements remind us of it.

It was not so long ago, as McMasters tells you in his good history of the United States, when the best and the most famous mechanic in our country, a certain carpenter in New England, WAS ABLE TO EARN ONE DOLLAR A DAY ALL THE YEAR ROUND. Of course, he couldn't work on Sundays, Fourth of July, Christmas or Thanksgiving. He was able probably to work about three hundred days in the year, and he was able to make the extraordinary sum of three hundred dollars for the three hundred days—AND HE WAS THE ONLY WORKING MAN IN THE COUNTRY THAT COULD DO IT.

Remember also that it isn't so long since, right here in our own country, a man could vote only if he had a certain amount of property.

Remember that a good many of our old forefathers doubted the advisability of letting ORDINARY WORKING MEN VOTE AT ALL.

Remember that the man who had the impudence to go on strike was promptly put in jail here in the United States, merely for stopping his work, not so far back.

And remember that those who imagine that this republic was originally a concern got up by working people and ordinary plain people are badly mistaken.

The Revolution was started, the Constitution was written, the country was bossed in the early days by prosperous, big individuals. It wasn't liberty for ALL men that they wanted so much as freedom for themselves FROM ENGLAND AND ENGLISH TAXES.

We are a good deal better off than we were, even if we HAVE a large collection of plutocratic gentlemen who, by the power of money, are able even yet to make our democracy a good deal of a joke in spots.

Two Different Views of the Same Editorial

GETS INDIGNANT.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Your recent editorial about "Women—You Poor Wretched Slaves," is a positive insult to the hundreds of sensible women who may have read it. You speak of seeing a "wasp's waist, kangaroo's hips, and a fawn's foot, with a dress like a peacock's tail, and a head very much like that of the peacock."

I (and I have the opportunity to see a great many women) have never seen a woman to answer that description.

Do you suppose that, just because their shoes are pointed that they do not fit them?

I have never seen women who have "got their faces worn and their eyes hollow," for fashion.

Another thing, no one ever made a woman get another dress. If she wishes twenty more it is her own affair, and a mere change of a small detail is not the reason for a new dress.

You speak of a certain union needed in this country. One is needed right in Boston—a "Union for the advancement of Minding One's Own Affairs."

BEST SHE EVER READ

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Your editorial of women's fads was one of the best I ever read. I can say Amen to it all with one exception, "Thinking that it pleases men. And the man doesn't even see it, or if he sees it, he despises it."

Now I put on corsets because my husband wanted me to after our third child was born—never having worn them previous to that. He wanted it so much I gave in and wore them to "please" him.

Do not for one moment think he is not a sensible man. He is a rock of good sense (in everything else) and the best husband and father that ever lived, and one that thinks his wife "is about right," only he wants her to look like "other women."

Now if you could only look behind the scenes you would find a lot of Adams advising their Eves to wear corsets, especially if they are a bit stout, and an Eve that has lived a good many happy years with her Adam will do anything, even to putting on corsets, to please him.

The head of the house always reads with interest all of your editorials and thinks they are very fine. So please some time talk to the men on the same subject, and there is many a "poor, wretched slave" of the corset that will rise up and call you blessed.

Little Editorials from the People

FORCE OF EXAMPLE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

We read from time to time of young men occupying positions of trust, who risk their employers' money on the races or other forms of gambling. Is it any wonder that such things happen when the example is set by our "captains of industry" who daily gamble in stocks? These men are looked up to and respected. The young clerk regards them as models of successful men. He thinks that if they gamble and win, he can do the same. To gamble in stocks requires too much capital, so he tries the races instead. He loses, becomes desperate, "borrows" from his employer, loses again, and is branded as a common thief. [illegible] is a thief, to be sure, and there is no [illegible] se for his conduct, but some of the re[illegible]sibility should be laid at the doors of [illegible] who have led this way.

THE LAST STRAW IS THE PRICE OF PIE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

This is too much. The American people are patient, but there are some things they will not stand. We have lived to see the prices of all the necessaries of life advanced, and, though we have kicked, we have not started anything serious. We knew it was in our power to put a stop to these extortions whenever we wished, but we were too lazy to do it. In consequence the trusts have grown bolder and bolder, and now they have struck a blow that must be avenged. Need I say that I refer to the fact that the price of pie has been raised? The whole American people will rise in their might rather than submit to such an iniquitous attack on the greatest of all American institutions, the pie. Mark my words, this is the beginning of the end.

PERSONAL MEMOIRS OF OUR PRESIDENTS

Diary of a Secretary

MONDAY—Boss in an awf temper to-day. It's getti a terrible job to mal matches for him succes fully. Who'd have thought a bloomi bishop would be any good at ten and here he goes and beats the B I'm getting nervous now about fat Japanese person who says he wrestler. He doesn't look fit fo gruelling contest, but after this b affair I'm leary of all of them. Ho ever, the Japanese are supposed to polite, so Hitachiyama will let the Bo win anyway, I guess. If he doesn't I'l lose my job for sure.

TUESDAY—Quentin had three snakes in the house to-day and I got into another row—as if I could go through his pockets every five minutes. I noticed some of these anti-Fairbanks people seemed relieved when I told them the snakes were real. Seems I should have taken the blame for that cocktail, by the way, but I couldn't bring myself to admit ever ordering a cocktail with a cherry in it.

WEDNESDAY—Forty army officers trying to get me to beg off for them on the fifteen-mile ride the Boss has ordered for them. Not much, I won't. I like to see some one else get it in the neck—or otherwise—once in a while.

THURSDAY—Got into another row to-day. Appears speech No. 45 "leaked."

Later—Another fuss because speech No. 41 did not leak, and thereby failed to create much of a rumpus.

FRIDAY—Shipped a carload of wild hogs to the canebrakes to-day. Going to be good sport for one chasing around there, as I hate wild hogs and don't see why I should be shooting at them anyway. I suppose all the blame will be mine if the critters are not wild enough. Well, I've done all I could—tied a lard pail to every one of them.

SATURDAY—Fuss because Taft's getting in the papers again. How can I help it, unless I go out and cut all the cables? There won't be much from Siberia, however, and that will help some. To-morrow's Sunday, thank goodness. After writing three or four hundred letters saying I was to blame, I will have the rest of the day free.

Democracy's Betrayal

(From the Northampton Herald)

IT is now, of course, a foregone conclusion that Henry M. Whitney will be nominated for Governor by the Democrats at Springfield next week, and thus will be consummated another betrayal and degradation of the party, as many times before, at the dictation of the Gaston-Quincy and Boston machine clique. The party chooses to nominate a man for the highest office in the State's gift who has been formally condemned by the Legislature as a corrupter of the sentinels placed on guard in the legislative halls.

Everybody knows that Henry M. Whitney, with such a record, would not be considered for a moment were it not for his money, which is to be spent in every Democratic committee in the State.

To many the official salutation, "God save the Commonwealth" will have a new meaning this Fall, and if the craze of commercialism has not utterly bewildered the people there will be mighty revulsion on foot within twenty-four hours after Mr. Whitney's nomination. And such men as Thomas L. Hisgen, George Fred Williams and Thomas W. Lawson will have a big hand in it.

She Gives Her Reasons for Thinking Amelie Rives's Masterpiece, "Herod and Mariamne," Is

America's Greatest Poem

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner.

THE editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN has asked me to explain why I consider the "Drama of Herod and Mariamne," by Amelie Rives, the greatest American poem, greater than the "Wine of Wizardry," in September Cosmopolitan.

I can only explain by giving a few of the many brilliant and beautiful passages from this drama, which was written when Miss Rives was only twenty-four years old.

The wonderful and terrible story of Herod and Mariamne is, it has always seemed to me, the most remarkable in all history. Herod loved his beautiful Queen with the wild, savage love of primitive man in a primitive era; yet, when intrigue, jealousy and avarice, which marked that era, caused him to believe her unfaithful, he had her put to death.

Then his love and sorrow drove him mad; and he compelled his court to call her name as if she were living and to prepare a feast for her coming.

It is a great theme, and the young poet made a great poetical drama of it.

It is a great poem, because it deals with great human emotions.

It is to be hoped that our American managers may some day grow to a realization of its large possibilities for a theatrical success.

It is a pleasure to refresh the minds of AMERICAN readers with these jewels from the brain of America's greatest poet, Amelie Rives.

Here are a few of the brilliants which star the poem from beginning to end:

FOR when kings and queens quarrel, kings are kings in vain.
Dost thou hear?
Let me be king of thee.
And God is welcome to his sway of heaven.
Love me? Not thou; thou lovest the cold peace,
That child of frozen virtue. I have fire
To melt the Sphinx, but not to warm the blood
Of one chaste woman.
Love? Thou dost but use the word
To play with, as a child its father's sword.
What? Lie awake o' nights? Thou scorch thy brain
With bootless wishing?
Thou eat pictured lips? Thou feed Regret with memory? And then rage
Because he is not satisfied? Thou love?
Nay, girl, the sun will set the sea afire
Ere thy cool heart be set aflame with love!
Would to heaven I knew what loving means to thee.
It means to put myself beyond myself;

To think of him I love in that self's stead;
To be sleep's enemy, because of him;
Because of him, to be the friend of pain;
To have no thought, no wish, no dream, no memory
That is not servant to him; to forget
All earlier loves in his, all hates, all wrongs;
Being meek to him, tho' to all others proud;
To him submissive, tho' unto high heaven
Something rebellious;
Last, to keep my patience,
And bear his doubts, who have his children borne.

* * *

That Mariamne's blood? Let heaven forswear it's blue.
The sea it's green; aye, let the very stars
Put on her color and burn bloodily.
To do her honor I will build a pyramid
Unto her memory, and its smallest stone
Shall twice outshine Cheops' entirety.
While for a mortar I will mix the dust
Of emperors dead with blood of living kings.
To work, to work; for Earth's foundation stone
Must be the first in this tremendous pile.

* * *

After the death of Mariamne, when Herod, in madness, prepared for her coming, he cries:

Now shall all nights to this night be as leaves
From wisdom's tree unto its golden fruit;
As sparks to stars, as stars unto God's crown;
Let some new god be born to conquer heaven,
Dethrone Jehovah, and create new worlds
For that Prince who shall one day live as proof
Of this night's wonder. Mariamne, come!
I'll shake the stars from out their blackened sockets
To light our bridal bed; the choir of heaven
Shall chant us to our sleep; and for our coverlet
Thou shalt the mantle of God's glory wear.
Shout, ye tempest-riding spirits! Earth, give voice!
Respond, ye forests, like to harps; let Ocean
Her cymbal clashing waves to heaven send,
And sweep down echoes from the halls of Zeus.
Aye! Let Hell upon the forehead of this night
Be bound as torch to light our ecstasy.

Surely this is greater poetry than the "Wine of Wizardry."
